GOP SURE IT CAN KILL TAX CUT

Vote On Conveyor Expected Tonight

Decision Could Place Project Before House

Wallace Has Said He Will Oppose Bill In Committee

Tension mounted rapidly in the legislative battle over the conveyor belt plan today when it appeared a decisive vote in committee may be only hours away.

From the beginning of the controversy over the belt plan, many observers have warned that the committee vote may be extremely close. The decision will tell whether the project is to be placed before the General Assembly this session, or set aside for the time being.

The "rubber railroad" plan, under which a cargo belt would carry coal from East Liverpool on the Ohio River to the Cleveland district, has been under heavy pressure consideration in the House Commerce and Transportation Committee in Columbus. Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative and a member of that committee, has said he will reluctantly vote against the measure in committee.

Wallace has made it clear he feels the proposal should be placed before the General Assembly for decision. But he said he would yield to opposing sentiment here.

WHILE THERE was no definite way of telling when a committee vote might come on the touchy issue, there appeared to be a strong chance the decision will come Tuesday night. At the same time, it was emphasized that a committee vote may be delayed, and that it may not—eventually—be as close as expected.

Interest on the belt plan rose suddenly in Pickaway County when it was pointed out the project could cut deeply into the coal hauling business of the railroads using this district. This in turn would reduce the amount of taxes paid by the railroads to the county, casting an indirect threat over school development programs and other phases of local growth.

Railroads, farm groups and labor unions have led opposition to the plan. Steel and rubber interests are said to be its main support.

False Reporter Given $25 Fine

COLUMBUS (AP)—A Columbus man has pleaded guilty to falsely reporting to police that Pat McDermott, escaped penitentiary lifer, forced him at gunpoint Sunday to drive here from Mount Vernon.

Municipal Judge Charles R. Peetree, yesterday fined Gene Dougherty, 29, $25 and costs.

McDermott was serving a life sentence for the murder when he walked out of an honor dormitory at Ohio Penitentiary last Nov. 28 with a group of visitors. He has been placed on the FBI's 10 most wanted list.

Council To Study New Water Plans

Softening Plant And Elevated Storage Tank Recommended

Plans for another major step in long-range improvements for the city's water system will be discussed Tuesday night when city council meets for its second March session.

The latest step would complete an eight-point program drawn up by the firm of Burgess and Niple, Columbus consulting engineers. The firm has been under contract to make a complete survey of the city's sewer and water needs.

Spokesmen for the company and Public Utilities Manager Ervin Leist recently conferred with members of council on the next step proposed. It would be twofold: to set up a water softening plant and to build an elevated storage tank, with 500,000 gallons capacity, inside the city.

Primary aim of the two-point proposal is to eliminate iron from the city's water supply. Leist said he has had numerous complaints from housewives who said city water stained their wash. At times there have also been complaints about a "metallic" taste in the drinking water.

WHILE conditions causing these complaints have not been consistent, Leist explained, they have been frequent enough to indicate a major problem for the city, and one which will become steadily worse if ignored. Those who have filed such complaints already, or wish to do so now, should either attend council's meeting or make sure they relay their views to their councilmen, Leist said.

The latest report in which the Columbus consultants blueprint the foremost needs of the city's water system is a revision of one drawn in March 1947. Eight points are paramount in the plan to give the city a modern and efficient water system. And all but the last two points in the plan have already been accomplished.

Efficient operation of the water and sewage networks has long been recognized as vital to Circleville's progress and growth. Meanwhile, Leist has repeatedly warned the community may be headed for critical difficulties in this respect—due to the age of the sewage-water set-up—unless planning and projects are given a high priority in council.

Officials Blame County As City Fails To Pay

Taxes Distribution Check Is Overdue; Employees Complain

Circleville city officials today laid the blame for an overdue payday on the Pickaway County auditor's office.

Many municipal workers voiced complaints early Tuesday when they learned the mid-month pay would be delayed for at least 24 hours. Police, firemen, the city hall janitor, parking meter man, and employees of city court were among those affected by the "misfire" payday.

City Auditor Lillian Young, who said the mid-month payroll totals to $3,000, revealed she had counted on a tax distribution check from the county auditor's office to "make both ends meet." The check, representing personal property tax distribution due the city, was expected Tuesday, Miss Young said.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt leveled sharp criticism at the county department for failing to pay the city the due amount long ago. He said the personal property taxes should have been collected last September and that distribution should have been made no later than the first of this year.

"IT'S AWFUL," he declared, "and of course it makes the city look bad. It makes the city look as though we were the ones who missed the payroll, when in reality it wasn't the city's fault."

GOP Lacks Power To Elect President Now, Nixon Says

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon has bluntly warned members of his party that the GOP won in 1952 only because of its strong candidate, adding that "the Republican party today is not strong enough to elect a President."

These outspoken views of the political situation were given by Nixon when he talked to 2,500 fellow southern California Republicans during one of three speeches here yesterday.

The young vice president said that at the behest of President Eisenhower he was urging party workers "to do a big job this year and next."

Nixon called on GOP workers to build a majority party by 1956. Nixon gave this insight into the President's views:

"The current situation is one the President feels we should remedy and that's why he's taking hold of the Republican leadership at this time. He believes it's his responsibility to build the party so its strength will be as strong as that of the President himself."

Nixon did not disclose the President's intentions for 1956 but said significantly:

"I hope to work for the President again in 1956. The best way to see that he runs again is to build party power to the point where we can become the majority party."

The President sent a telegram here lauding Nixon for "his courage and honesty" which "have earned him the respect of all who seek a stronger America."

Before returning to Washington by plane, Nixon addressed the Los Angeles World Affairs Council last night on the administration's plans for boosting Latin-American trade. Nixon, who recently toured Central America and the Caribbean area, said those countries need more markets, capital, technical assistance and communications.

Private capital investment could handle most of the development, he said, but some government loans and lower tariff barriers would be needed.

"Communism has reached and passed its high water mark in the inter-American area," he said, predicting "more progress in Guatemala under Castillo Armas in the next two years than there was under a Communist government in the last 10."

President Told Senate To Halt Plan By Dems

Only Small Dent Seen In Republican Lineup Against Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican congressional leaders told President Eisenhower today they are confident a Democratic-sponsored proposal to cut income taxes will be defeated in the Senate and eventually in the House.

At a White House news conference after a conference with the President, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said he advised Eisenhower that he feels sure the Senate will reject the proposal. The conference was held shortly before the Senate convened to start voting on the tax measure.

Rep. Martin (R-Mass.) said he believes "we've got the votes" to reverse an earlier House ballot to reduce everybody's taxes by $20 starting Jan. 1.

The California senator predicted defeat in the Senate for all amendments to cut income taxes. He forecast passage of the bill in the same form it came from the Senate Finance Committee.

That committee stripped the House-approved measure of the income tax reduction provision. Earlier in the day a new gap showed up in the Senate Republican lineup against the tax cut.

Sen. Young (R-ND) disclosed he had notified GOP leaders he is reserving the right to support the Democratic move. It has been offered as a substitute for an administration-backed bill to extend present corporation and excise tax rates a year beyond April 1.

Republicans had counted on losing only Sen. Langer of North Dakota from their 47 members. They expected backing from about 6 of the 49 Democrats.

Young's declaration that he did not feel himself bound to go along with the GOP apparently was a blow to administration supporters. Some said earlier they were fearful of losing Sen. Case (R-SD) and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The substitute would give to families with income under $5,000 a year a $20 tax cut in 1956 for the taxpayer, plus $10 for each dependent except a spouse.

THE HOUSE earlier had approved. (Continued on Page Two)

Dems Set Liaison With Gov. Lausche

Ohio Solon Says Fuel Gas Price To Zoom

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Cleveland congressman told some Ohio mayors today he fears this Congress may pass a law that will raise everybody's gas bill.

A week from today, the House Commerce Committee will open hearings on several bills to remove Federal Power Commission regulation of prices of natural gas at the source. The Supreme Court ruled last year that the commission has that power.

In a letter to the mayors, Vanik said if Congress should go along with this idea gas prices will "sky-rocket." He invited the mayors to come to Washington and testify against the bills.

But he wrote: "Forces in this Congress are bipartisan and strongly inclined to carry out the administration's blessing on this type of law."

An administration committee headed by Defense Mobilizer Arthur Flemming has supported the price of federal controls over the price of well head gas.

Vanik said he believes the Flemming committee report was the "administration's campaign payoff to Oklahoma, Texas and the Southwest."

Newest Guided Missile Is Credited With Having A 'Brain All Its Own'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force today described the Falcon, its newest guided missile, as "the only air-to-air missile with a brain of its own."

Removing some of the secrecy wrappings from the weapon designed to seek out and drop enemy bombers, the Air Force said it is the first line of defense against air attack.

This latest and smallest American missile is already in production and will soon be supplied as fighting armament to all-weather fighter-interceptor jet units stationed in the arctic and at other posts around the approaches to the North American continent.

THE RAFT Lehi II is shown at Alameda, Calif., after a two-day shakedown float on San Francisco bay, preparatory to an odyssey from Los Angeles to Hawaii and who knows where else, if the Lehi II is a sequel to the Lehi which started from L. It will be sailed to Los Angeles March 30.

craft Co. at Culver City, Calif., and Tucson, Ariz.

In words and pictures, the Air Force disclosed the Falcon to be a cigar-shaped missile looking like a rocket and about six feet long. At its warhead end, it is a little larger than a man's head.

Pictures showed it can be carried under the wings of a jet fighter, as ordinary rockets have been in the past.

When the pilot spots an approaching enemy bomber on his radar scope, the target is "locked" in the guidance system. An electronic computer takes over and fires the missile automatically. In films taken of recent tests, a drone B17 bomber was the target. Although the bomber maneuvered in attempts to dodge, the missile shifted its course and scored a direct hit. The Air Force said similar results have been achieved when the target was a jet fighter.

The Air Force said that the Falcon has an effective killing range of from three to five miles.

It was understood that interception units in Greenland and Alaska would be among the first outfits to get the Falcon.

Judge Lashes Government For Provo Case Stalling

BALTIMORE — John David Provo, 37, once convicted and sentenced to life for wartime treason, was ordered freed yesterday when a federal judge ruled "deliberate" government delays prejudice his chances of a fair trial.

Judge Roszel C. Thomsen dismissed the indictment charging seven overt acts of treason while Provo was a prisoner of the Japanese after the fall of Corregidor in World War II.

The decision automatically ruled out a second trial on the charges asked by the government.

Judge Thomsen said Provo would be released on his own recognizance pending the possibility of an appeal by the government to the Supreme Court.

Provo, a tall, scholarly-looking onetime San Francisco bank clerk, broke down and wept when his four young court-appointed lawyers told him of the decision, handed down in chambers.

"I am very grateful," he said.

JUDGE THOMSEN, in a 33-page opinion, climaxing more than a month of hearings on Provo's petition for release, said he found Provo "could not have a fair trial at this late date."

He also found the former Army sergeant had been denied the right of speedy trial within the meaning of the 6th Amendment and that the government's "deliberate choice for a supposed advantage" in trying him originally in New York caused "oppressive delay and damage to the defendant."

The government charged Provo shaved his head and donned the white robes of a Buddhist priest, greeted the conquering Japanese on Corregidor in the Philippines in May 1942 and offered his services.

A jury in New York Federal Court two years ago convicted him on four of the seven treason acts charged. Specifically, he was convicted of offering to aid his Japanese captors, informing on and causing the execution of a fellow prisoner of war, Capt. Burton C. Thomson of Swea City, Iowa, and on two charges of wilfully broadcasting propaganda for the enemy.

Provo was sentenced to life imprisonment and fined $10,000 but an appeals court reversed the verdict last August.

WASHINGTON — Republican congressional leaders told President Eisenhower today they are confident a Democratic-sponsored proposal to cut income taxes will be defeated in the Senate and eventually in the House.

At a White House news conference after a conference with the President, Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said he advised Eisenhower that he feels sure the Senate will reject the proposal. The conference was held shortly before the Senate convened to start voting on the tax measure.

Rep. Martin (R-Mass.) said he believes "we've got the votes" to reverse an earlier House ballot to reduce everybody's taxes by $20 starting Jan. 1.

The California senator predicted defeat in the Senate for all amendments to cut income taxes. He forecast passage of the bill in the same form it came from the Senate Finance Committee.

That committee stripped the House-approved measure of the income tax reduction provision. Earlier in the day a new gap showed up in the Senate Republican lineup against the tax cut.

Sen. Young (R-ND) disclosed he had notified GOP leaders he is reserving the right to support the Democratic move. It has been offered as a substitute for an administration-backed bill to extend present corporation and excise tax rates a year beyond April 1.

Republicans had counted on losing only Sen. Langer of North Dakota from their 47 members. They expected backing from about 6 of the 49 Democrats.

Young's declaration that he did not feel himself bound to go along with the GOP apparently was a blow to administration supporters. Some said earlier they were fearful of losing Sen. Case (R-SD) and Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

The substitute would give to families with income under $5,000 a year a $20 tax cut in 1956 for the taxpayer, plus $10 for each dependent except a spouse.

Scioto Judge Pulls Out Of Bingo Dispute

COLUMBUS — Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the Ohio Supreme Court said today he would assign another judge to hear further proceedings in the state's padlock action against a bingo parlor near Portsmouth.

That became necessary after the Ohio attorney general's office yesterday withdrew an affidavit of prejudice against Common Pleas Judge Vernon Smith of Scioto County and after Smith said he no longer cared to sit in the case.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert B. Krupansky charged Judge Smith with bias because of his long acquaintance with Hugh H. Ruel, operator of the Chez Paree. The judge denied the charge during a Supreme Court hearing on his fitness to consider the case.

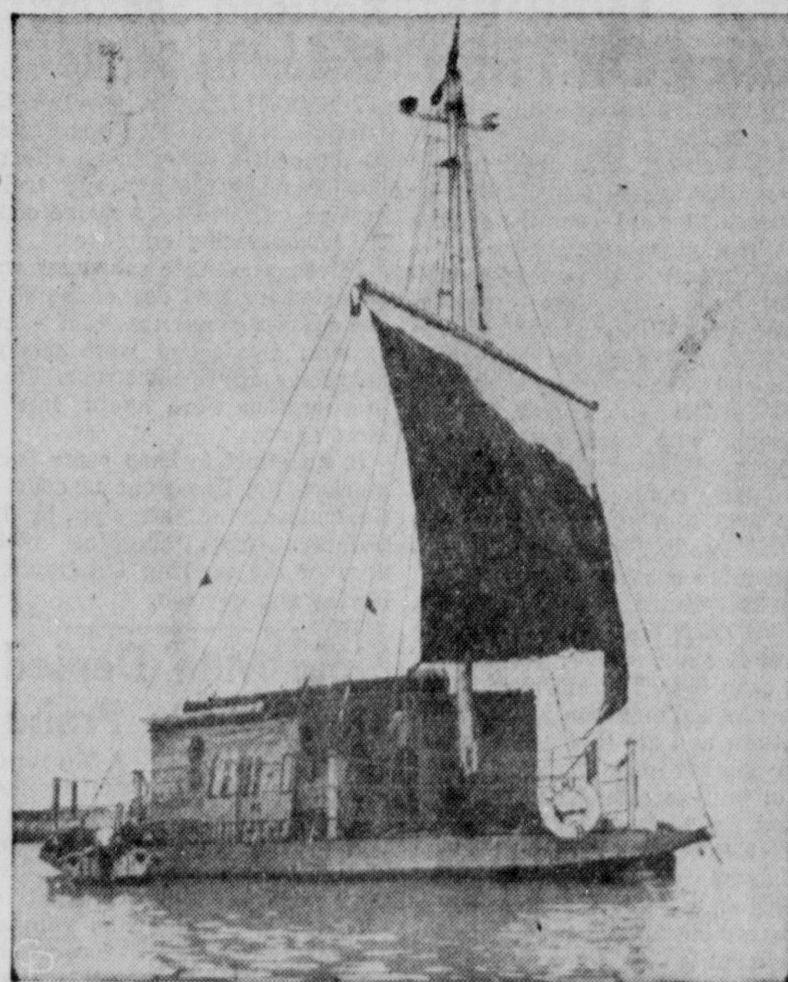

Judge Smith said that although he was not prejudiced when the case began, he had become so during the high court hearing. The judge asserted he no longer would consider presiding at further court proceedings in the case.

Chief Justice Weygandt said he did not know what judge other than Smith would be available or when the assignment would be made.

Weygandt assigned Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff of Pickaway County, who issued a temporary padlock order. There appeared a strong possibility that Judge Radcliff would be asked to continue in the case, depending on the case load which faces the Circleville jurist in his home court.

Pair Wed 67 Years

PAINESVILLE — At their 150-year-old home in nearby Madison, Dr. Julian V. Winans and his wife, Mertie, celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary today. She was 90 in December, and he will be 90 in May.

THE RAFT Lehi II is shown at Alameda, Calif., after a two-day shakedown float on San Francisco bay, preparatory to an odyssey from Los Angeles to Hawaii and who knows where else, if the Lehi II is a sequel to the Lehi which started from L. A. some time ago, with a crew headed by Devere Baker, who skips this one. After six days in a Pacific storm, a banana boat rescued the crew. Lehi II, says Baker, is more maneuverable. It will be sailed to Los Angeles March 30.

Newest Guided Missile Is Credited With Having A 'Brain All Its Own'

WASHINGTON — The Air Force today described the Falcon, its newest guided missile, as "the only air-to-air missile with a brain of its own."

Removing some of the secrecy wrappings from the weapon designed to seek out and drop enemy bombers, the Air Force said it is the first line of defense against air attack.

This latest and smallest American missile is already in production and will soon be supplied as fighting armament to all-weather fighter-interceptor jet units stationed in the arctic and at other posts around the approaches to the North American continent.

The Navy already has in use the Sparrow missile, also for launching from fighter craft against enemy planes. One version has a built-in guidance system that uses some of the features incorporated in the Falcon, but the Air Force said its missile contains guidance refinements and improvements that place it as of now in a class by itself.

The Falcon was conceived by the Air Force in 1947 and developed and produced by the Hughes Aircraft Co. at Culver City, Calif., and Tucson, Ariz.

In words and pictures, the Air Force disclosed the Falcon to be a cigar-shaped missile looking like a rocket and about six feet long. At its warhead end, it is a little larger than a man's head.

Pictures showed it can be carried under the wings of a jet fighter, as ordinary rockets have been in the past.

When the pilot spots an approaching enemy bomber on his radar scope, the target is "locked" in the guidance system. An electronic computer takes over and fires the missile automatically.

In films taken of recent tests, a drone B17 bomber was the target. Although the bomber maneuvered in attempts to dodge, the missile shifted its course and scored a direct hit. The Air Force said similar results have been achieved when the target was a jet fighter.

The Air Force said that the Falcon has an effective killing range of from three to five miles. It was understood that interceptor units in Greenland and Alaska would be among the first outfits to get the Falcon.

city's water system are the following:

1. An increase of water supply. This improvement led to the increase in iron content which present proposals would eliminate.
2. Replacement of the river crossing.
3. New chlorinator.
4. Master meter at the pumping station.
5. Elimination of steam pumping equipment and boilers, and installation of large electric pumps with a gasoline standby engine, for emergency use.
6. Replacement of the pumping station's heating system, made necessary by the preceding change.

THE TWO remaining steps, now recommended, would complete the program. Estimated cost of the proposed work is set at $575,000, but Leist emphasized it would cost more than one million dollars to bring about the same results by overhauling the vast network of pipes.

When the city took over the water system in 1946, a little more than 19 miles of pipes were being used. Now, 24 miles of pipe are in use.

Leist stressed that city residents, if they are not satisfied with the water supply, should make their views known to their councilmen now. Some of the lawmakers, he explained, claim they have yet to hear serious complaints along this line and hence doubt need for the improvements.

Among other items slated for consideration at council's meeting Tuesday night will be the ordinance to change the name of Lover's Lane to Nicholas Drive. The measure was introduced as a companion measure for legislation to widen and improve the street.

Councilman Boyd Horn blocked an effort to pass the ordinance on second reading last meeting, and it will be up for final decision Tuesday night.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt early Tuesday said, as far as he knew, no new ordinances were being prepared for the Tuesday session.

Weather Forecast

Temperatures will average near or slightly below normal. Normal high 47-54; normal low 29-33. Colder Wednesday and Wednesday night, milder by Thursday night. Colder Friday. Occasional rain Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charles Hines In State Finals Of FFA Contest

A Walnut Township High School senior will soon compete with eight others from Ohio in the race for a $200 prize.

Charles Hines recently earned the right by winning first place and $50 in the District 4 Ohio Bankers Assn. Chapter project. The contest was open to junior and senior Future Farmers of America in the state.

District 4 includes 13 southwest Ohio counties. Hines' award was for "keeping accurate and complete farm program records and showing a program towards becoming established in farming and citizenship in the community."

The state award of $200 is to be used by the FFA chapter the winner represents towards a trip to the National FFA Convention. This is scheduled to be held in Kansas City, Mo. sometime in the Fall.

Hines is secretary of the Walnut FFA. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hines, of Ashville Route 2. Hugh Coffman is the chapter's advisor.

Ohio Highway Speed Limit Boost Studied

Senate Seen Passing Bill Approving 60 Mph Rate Out In Country

COLUMBUS (AP)—How fast is "fast enough" to drive? That's the question before the Ohio Senate today.

Present law says 50 mph is fast enough on state highways in the open country and 35 mph inside municipalities.

The Senate votes today on a bill to make the speed limit for autos 60 mph in the open country from one hour before sunrise until one hour after sunset and 50 mph on state highways inside municipalities where traffic is not congested.

It would leave the open-country speed limit during night hours at 50 mph for autos.

It also would leave the speed limit for trucks and school buses at 50 mph day or night.

The bill, as originally presented by Sen. Robert R. Shaw (R-Franklin), provided only for a 50 mph speed limit in non-congested city areas. But it was amended by Sen. William Tyrrell (R-Preble) to provide the 60 mph daytime speed limit in the open country.

THE SPEED-limit is backed by the Ohio Automobile Assn. and chances are the bill will have relatively smooth sailing.

In the face of opposition from a handful of opponents, who argued the measure violates human rights, the House last night approved and sent to the Senate a bill to force hospitalization of persons with active cases of tuberculosis.

Rep. Harold W. Oyster (R-Washington), who lead the fight for the bill said it will protect the health of 8 1/2 million Ohioans from an irresponsible few who refuse treatment for the disease once known as the "white killer."

Sponsors estimated only about 100 Ohioans known to have tuberculosis have refused treatment.

The procedure under the proposed law would be for probate courts to commit tuberculosis sufferers for at least three months to a sanatorium. A patient would be eligible for release if and when sputum tests showed freedom from tuberculosis germs.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill providing employment contracts for non-teaching employees of school districts who have served at least one year.

Its sponsor, Sen. Charles A. Mosher (R-Lorain), emphasized it was not a "tenure" bill to compare with the permanent employment law affecting teachers. For non-teaching employees, he said, it would provide employment contracts of at least two years and not more than five.

The Senate Conservation Committee handed to a three-member subcommittee a bill, sponsored by Majority Leader C. Stanley Mecham (R-Athens), to enable the state to give financial and engineering assistance to villages required by state law to abate stream pollution.

Humphrey, Capehart Urging Cautation In Stocks Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told the Senate Banking Committee today its stock market inquiry may be undermining public confidence in the American economy.

Humphrey's volunteered statement brought a demand from Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) for an end to the group's inquiry into stock prices.

Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) retorted that the committee has a duty to sound a note of caution if one is needed.

While Humphrey and Capehart were issuing their pleas, the stock market rebounded with a great rush of buying and a portion of yesterday's major break was retracted.

Prices in the early afternoon were up 1 to 3 points in many cases. Losses usually were held below a point. Trading was rushing during the first hour and then subsided. The pace over-all was much less than yesterday's big 4,220,000 shares traded as prices receded.

Capehart spoke out after market prices took a new tumble yesterday for the biggest day's loss in nearly five years. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks skidded down $3.90 by the close of trading. This amounted roughly to a loss of about $4 billion in the quoted value of all securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Today's witness in the increasingly controversial Senate inquiry was Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey. He said he and other federal officials are "watching attentively" to make sure credit in the stock market, "just like all other kinds of credit," doesn't get beyond reasonable demands.

HUMPHREY said the Treasury is "watching attentively the conditions which the new higher level price rise which began in September 1953, a rise due in part, he said, to a 'rebirth of confidence in the functioning of our free enterprise system.'"

He was referring to the market of the stock market is creating." Humphrey declined, as have most other witnesses in the committee's "friendly study" of market conditions, to give an opinion whether stock prices went too high before the recent break.

"I gave up years ago trying to figure out the stock market," said the Treasury secretary, a leading industrialist before he joined President Eisenhower's Cabinet.

Capehart's statement calling for a change of course in the market inquiry showed a seemingly certain showdown with Committee Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark).

Fulbright made it plain yesterday that (1) he doesn't regard the present inquiry as the main cause of the market break, and (2) he regards stock prices as only one aspect, but an important one, of the investigation.

He said he didn't believe it would be wise to make the documents public now. He said certain information in them might affect ratification of the Paris agreements for West German rearmament.

Former call girl Pat Ward was scheduled to be the first witness. Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler said yesterday he would call her after opening statements.

Pat, now 21, was the state's star witness in Jelke's first trial in 1953. She is expected to repeat her previous testimony about falling in love with Jelke and then sharing with the oleomargarine heir the fees she got from dates she said he arranged for her.

In his first trial, Jelke was convicted of inducing Pat to lead the life of a prostitute and of trying to do the same with Marguerite Cordova, now 25.

This conviction was thrown out on appeal because Judge Francis L. Valente had closed the trial to the public during presentation of the prosecution's case. The appeals court ruled this deprived Jelke of a fair trial.

The new trial is expected to bring out the names of men who allegedly paid fees up to $500 for the favors of Jelke's girl friends. The men, some of them reportedly prominent figures, were previously protected by the illegal court ban.

Senators Shun Any Study Of Yalta Papers

U.S. State Department Decides To Keep Secret Of Controversial Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators Capehart (R-Ind) and Sparkman (D-Ala) today backed the refusal of Sen. George (D-Ga) to accept "confidential" copies of the Yalta conference record.

Secretary of State Dulles announced yesterday he had decided not to publish the papers dealing with the World War II Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting in the Russian Crimea. But he said he would send copies to key members of Congress.

State Department Press Officer Henry Suydam mentioned national security and Allied unity as reasons for Dulles' decision. The 1945 conference over the last 10 years has been a point of much Republican-Democratic controversy.

George said yesterday he would not take responsibility for possible news leaks and would turn back three copies assigned to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which he heads.

"The information in these papers would leak out and I don't want to accept them and find myself in the position of having to make them public," he said.

HE SAID HE doesn't know what is in the record and doesn't want to know unless the papers can be made public.

Capehart, a member of the committee, said he feels "the same way Sen. George does."

"I would not accept these documents and take the responsibility of their getting out," he said.

Sparkman, another Foreign Relations Committee member, said he supports George's position that the State Department ought to take the responsibility either for publishing the Yalta papers or keeping them secret. He has no objection to their publication.

"I think our Republican brethren have exploited all of the political possibilities of the Yalta conference in past campaigns and there isn't much left for them to use," he said.

At the Yalta conference, the Big Three set the terms for Russian entry into the war against Japan. In the years since, the Republicans have accused President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his aides of selling out Chinese Nationalist interest in Manchuria. The Democrats have contended the Russians broke pledges they made at Yalta and in fact made more concessions than did the Allies.

George said he didn't believe it would be wise to make the documents public now. He said certain information in them might affect ratification of the Paris agreements for West German rearmament.

Wet, Cooler Weather Hits U.S. Midwest

CHICAGO (AP)—Wet and cooler weather was over much of the mid-continent today. Fairly mild weather continued in most other parts of the country.

The colder air moved southward across the Midwest. It was below freezing as far south as Goodland, Kan. Northerly winds blew across the northern Great Plains. It was near zero in extreme northern Minnesota early today.

The storm center extended southward from the western Great Lakes region to the southeastern Great Plains area. Showers and thunderstorms hit the Lake Michigan area southward across eastern Illinois into southeast Missouri.

Light snow fell in parts of upper Michigan and in parts of the central and northern Rockies.

Light rain and drizzle were reported in northwestern South Carolina southward through central Georgia, southeastern Alabama and northwestern Florida.

Temperatures early today were in the 70s in the Texas and Louisiana coastal regions. The mild weather, with southerly winds, extended northward into southwestern Lower Michigan.

Officials Blame County As City Fails To Pay

The solicitor in the past has often rapped the county auditor's office for failing to keep up with tax distribution payments due the city.

Miss Young said the expected check would normally be about $6,000, ample to meet the payroll. However, she had consoling news for the unpaid city workers and indicated they may get their money Wednesday.

Miss Young said she planned to confer with George Crites, chairman of city council's finance committee, to see if he advised meeting the payroll with an overdraft. "But that, of course, is actually paying out money we don't have," she added, "and I don't want to do it until I've had a chance to see Mr. Crites."

Miss Young said she had feared the present situation might develop and had held payment of bills in an unsuccessful effort to have enough money on hand for the payroll.

Jelke Jurors To Hear First Girl Witness

NEW YORK (AP)—Jurors in the Mickey Jelke trial, assembled in four days, today get on to the business of hearing testimony about safe society playboys and their call girls.

Former call girl Pat Ward was scheduled to be the first witness. Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler said yesterday he would call her after opening statements.

Pat, now 21, was the state's star witness in Jelke's first trial in 1953. She is expected to repeat her previous testimony about falling in love with Jelke and then sharing with the oleomargarine heir the fees she got from dates she said he arranged for her.

The new trial is expected to bring out the names of men who allegedly paid fees up to $500 for the favors of Jelke's girl friends. The men, some of them reportedly prominent figures, were previously protected by the illegal court ban.

5. Elimination of steam pumping equipment and boilers, and installation of large electric pumps with a gasoline standby engine, for emergency use.
6. Replacement of the pumping station's heating system, made necessary by the preceding change.

THE TWO remaining steps, now recommended, would complete the program. Estimated cost of the proposed work is set at $575,000, but Leist emphasized it would cost more than one million dollars to bring about the same results by overhauling the vast network of pipes.

When the city took over the water system in 1946, a little more than 19 miles of pipes were being used. Now, 24 miles of pipe are in use.

Leist stressed that city residents, if they are not satisfied with the water supply, should make their views known to their councilmen now. Some of the lawmakers, he explained, claim they have yet to hear serious complaints along this line and hence doubt need for the improvements.

Among other items slated for consideration at council's meeting Tuesday night will be the ordinance to change the name of Lover's Lane to Nicholas Drive. The measure was introduced as a companion measure for legislation to widen and improve the street.

Councilman Boyd Horn blocked an effort to pass the ordinance on second reading last meeting, and it will be up for final decision Tuesday night.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt early Tuesday said, as far as he knew, no new ordinances were being prepared for the Tuesday session.

Weather Forecast

Temperatures will average near or slightly below normal. Normal high 47-54; normal low 29-33. Colder Wednesday and Wednesday night, milder by Thursday night. Colder Friday. Occasional rain Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charles Hines In State Finals Of FFA Contest

A Walnut Township High School senior will soon compete with eight others from Ohio in the race for a $200 prize.

Charles Hines recently earned the right by winning first place and $50 in the District 4 Ohio Bankers Assn. Chapter project. The contest was open to junior and senior Future Farmers of America in the state.

District 4 includes 13 southwest Ohio counties. Hines' award was for "keeping accurate and complete farm program records and showing a program towards becoming established in farming and citizenship in the community."

The state award of $200 is to be used by the FFA chapter the winner represents towards a trip to the National FFA Convention. This is scheduled to be held in Kansas City, Mo. sometime in the Fall.

Hines is secretary of the Walnut FFA. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hines, of Ashville Route 2. Hugh Coffman is the chapter's advisor.

Ohio Highway Speed Limit Boost Studied

Senate Seen Passing Bill Approving 60 Mph Rate Out In Country

COLUMBUS (AP)—How fast is "fast enough" to drive?

That's the question before the Ohio Senate today.

Present law says 50 mph is fast enough on state highways in the open country and 35 mph inside municipalities.

The Senate votes today on a bill to make the speed limit for autos 60 mph in the open country from one hour before sunrise until one hour after sunset and 50 mph on state highways inside municipalities where traffic is not congested.

It would leave the open-country speed limit during night hours at 50 mph for autos.

It also would leave the speed limit for trucks and school buses at 50 mph day or night.

The bill, as originally presented by Sen. Robert R. Shaw (R-Franklin), provided only for a 50 mph speed limit in non-congested city areas. But it was amended by Sen. William Tyrrell (R-Preble) to provide the 60 mph daytime speed limit in the open country.

THE SPEED-limit is backed by the Ohio Automobile Assn. and chances are the bill will have relatively smooth sailing.

In the face of opposition from a handful of opponents, who argued the measure violates human rights, the House last night approved and sent to the Senate a bill to force hospitalization of persons with active cases of tuberculosis.

Rep. Harold W. Oyster (R-Washington), who lead the fight for the bill said it will protect the health of 8 1/2 million Ohioans from an irresponsible few who refuse treatment for the disease once known as the "white killer."

Sponsors estimated only about 100 Ohioans known to have tuberculosis have refused treatment.

The procedure under the proposed law would be for probate courts to commit tuberculosis sufferers for at least three months to a sanatorium. A patient would be eligible for release if and when sputum tests showed freedom from tuberculosis germs.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill providing employment contracts for non-teaching employees of school districts who have served at least one year.

Its sponsor, Sen. Charles A. Mosher (R-Lorain), emphasized it was not a "tenure" bill to compare with the permanent employment law affecting teachers. For non-teaching employees, he said, it would provide employment contracts of at least two years and not more than five.

The Senate Conservation Committee handed to a three-member subcommittee a bill, sponsored by Majority Leader C. Stanley Mecham (R-Athens), to enable the state to give financial and engineering assistance to villages required by state law to abate stream pollution.

Humphrey, Capehart Urging Cautation In Stocks Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey told the Senate Banking Committee today its stock market inquiry may be undermining public confidence in the American economy.

Humphrey's volunteered statement brought a demand from Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) for an end to the group's inquiry into stock prices.

Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark) retorted that the committee has a duty to sound a note of caution if one is needed.

While Humphrey and Capehart were issuing their pleas, the stock market rebounded with a great rush of buying and a portion of yesterday's major break was retraced.

Prices in the early afternoon were up 1 to 3 points in many cases. Losses usually were held below a point. Trading was rushing during the first hour and then subsided. The pace over-all was much less than yesterday's big 4,220,000 shares traded as prices receded.

Capehart spoke out after market prices took a new tumble yesterday for the biggest day's loss in nearly five years. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks skidded down $3.90 by the close of trading. This amounted roughly to a loss of about $4 billion in the quoted value of all securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Today's witness in the increasingly controversial Senate inquiry was Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey. He said he and other federal officials are "watching attentively" to make sure credit in the stock market, "just like all other kinds of credit," doesn't get beyond reasonable demands.

HUMPHREY said the Treasury is "watching attentively the conditions which the new higher level price rise which began in September 1953, a rise due in part, he said, to a "rebirth of confidence in the functioning of our free enterprise system."

He was referring to the market of the stock market is creating. Humphrey declined, as have most other witnesses in the committee's "friendly study" of market conditions, to give an opinion whether stock prices went too high before the recent break.

"I gave up years ago trying to figure out the stock market," said the Treasury secretary, a leading industrialist before he joined President Eisenhower's Cabinet.

Capehart's statement calling for a change of course in the market inquiry presaged a seemingly certain showdown with Committee Chairman Fulbright (D-Ark).

Fulbright made it plain yesterday that (1) he doesn't regard the present inquiry as the main cause of the market break, and (2) he regards stock prices as only one aspect, but an important one, of the investigation.

Judge Uses New Tough Policy On Thug

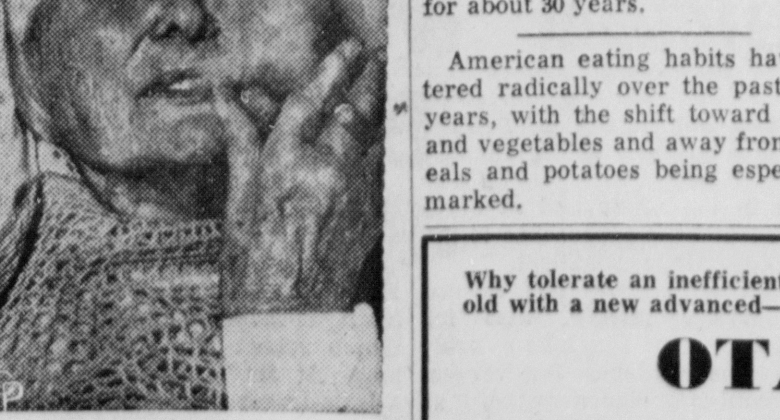

COLUMBUS (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Ralph J. Bartlett followed up his warning of a "get tough" policy with armed thugs today by imposing unusual conditions on a New Lexington man.

Judge Bartlett announced recently that "the time has come to make war on these thugs" after a jury returned a guilty verdict in an armed robbery case.

Clarence Hutchinson, 26, of New Lexington appeared before Judge Bartlett for sentencing on an armed robbery charge. First the court sentenced him to 10 to 25 years in Ohio Penitentiary and then imposed these conditions:

- (1) That Hutchinson be sentenced to hard labor during weekdays for the first year of his term;
- (2) that each Saturday morning he be placed in solitary confinement for 24 hours; and
- (3) that he be taken from solitary each Sunday morning in time to attend church services in the penitentiary.

Hutchinson, a 16-year-old brother and Arthur Shaffer, 24, of New Lexington, were arrested after a filling station holdup here. Shaffer was found guilty by a jury last week, at which time Bartlett announced his "tough" policy.

Senators Shun Any Study Of Yalta Papers

U.S. State Department Decides To Keep Secret Of Controversial Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators Capehart (R-Ind) and Sparkman (D-Ala) today backed the refusal of Sen. George (D-Ga) to accept "confidential" copies of the Yalta conference record.

Secretary of State Dulles announced yesterday he had decided not to publish the papers dealing with the World War II Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting in the Russian Crimea. But he said he would send copies to key members of Congress.

State Department Press Officer Henry Suydam mentioned national security and Allied unity as reasons for Dulles' decision. The 1945 conference over the last 10 years has been a point of much Republican-Democratic controversy.

George said yesterday he would not take responsibility for possible news leaks and would turn back three copies assigned to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which he heads.

"The information in these papers would leak out and I don't want to accept them and find myself in the position of having to make them public," he said.

HE SAID HE doesn't know what is in the record and doesn't want to know unless the papers can be made public.

Capehart, a member of the committee, said he feels "the same way Sen. George does."

"I would not accept these documents and take the responsibility of their getting out," he said.

Sparkman, another Foreign Relations Committee member, said he supports George's position that the State Department ought to take the responsibility either for publishing the Yalta papers or keeping them secret. He has no objection to their publication.

"I think our Republican brethren have exploited all of the political possibilities of the Yalta conference in past campaigns and there isn't much left for them to use," he said.

At the Yalta conference, the Big Three set the terms for Russian entry into the war against Japan. In the years since, the Republicans have accused President Franklin D. Roosevelt and his aides of selling out Chinese Nationalist interest in Manchuria. The Democrats have contended the Russians broke pledges they made at Yalta and in fact made more concessions than did the Allies.

George, said he didn't believe it would be wise to make the documents public now. He said certain information in them might affect ratification of the Paris agreements for West German rearmament.

check to check and they need the money."

The solicitor in the past has often rapped the county auditor's office for failing to keep up with tax distribution payments due the city.

Miss Young said the expected check would normally be about $6,000, ample to meet the payroll. However, she had consoling news for the unpaid city workers and indicated they may get their money Wednesday.

Miss Young said she planned to confer with George Crites, chairman of city council's finance committee, to see if he advised meeting the payroll with an overdraft.

"But that, of course, is actually paying out money we don't have," she added, "and I don't want to do it until I've had a chance to see Mr. Crites."

Miss Young said she had feared the present situation might develop and had held payment of bills in an unsuccessful effort to have enough money on hand for the payroll.

President Told Senate To Halt Plan By Dems

ed a cut of $20 for every taxpayer and dependent starting next Jan. 1.

To make up the $908 million annual loss in revenue involved in the Senate plan, Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex) proposed repeal of the dividends—received credit of the 1954 tax law. He also asked repeal of a provision for accelerated depreciation and a section which lets business firms set up reserves for anticipated business expenses. Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey asked Congress to repeal the latter in separate legislation.

The package proposal would extend current corporation and excise tax rates 27 months beyond April 1. Johnson claimed it would increase revenues, an argument which Humphrey calls "silly."

Johnson, obviously angered by Humphrey's criticism of the Democrats' tax cut plan as a "political quickie gimmick" teed off on the cabinet member yesterday.

"It looks to me like Mr. Humphrey is trying to be the best big business secretary of the treasury since Andrew Mellon," Johnson declared.

"Congress has the responsibility of passing the tax bill in the form it thinks such a bill ought to be. It is not going to pay any attention to press releases from the information division of the treasury."

"The Democratic proposal will mean a reduction in benefits for the dividend boys of 1 1/2 billion dollars. We are going to take that and give it to everybody."

Andrew Mellon, to whom Johnson likened Humphrey, was a Pittsburgh banker-industrialist who was secretary of the treasury under Republican Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

Ohio Civil Defense Setup Beginning To Take Shape

Editor's Note: Following is the first of two articles concerning Ohio's plans to ward off any attack by an enemy.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (AP)—Is Ohio prepared to ward off the damaging effect of an enemy H-bomb or A-bomb attack?

Not now, civil defense authorities agree. But the picture is brightening.

Perhaps in a matter of months the state CD organization may be in a much better position than it is today. But first many things must be done, chief among them is the solution to the oldest problem: Getting cooperation of the public, full participation of the state's citizens in the program already outlined.

In the past few weeks some steps have been taken which might bring about greater citizen interest.

One of the principal complaints of local CD authorities in the past has been that they "didn't know where they were going" and that state and national CD authorities were not telling them just what should be done, and how.

Now, Gen. Leo M. Kreber, adjutant general of Ohio and state CD chief, and his staff, have sent out a tentative program for reorganization. It divides the state into five CD areas centered around the nine principal target cities (Toledo, Cleveland, Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Steubenville, Dayton, Cincinnati and Columbus). It gives a pre-attack dispersal plan, makes provisions for reorganizing CD authorities within the state.

Local CD organizations now have these plans and can go to work making evacuation arrangements and arranging disaster relief in their own areas.

The state made its move after national CD authorities, and the Atomic Energy Commission, released some information on the H-bomb needed for proper planning. Defense Administrator Val Peterson told Congress the situation did not look too good and that there was no question in his mind that target cities would have to be evacuated.

Earlier, the AEC in a bulletin to all CD leaders had reported that in a single H-bomb blast the fallout danger could continue for a long period over an area of 14,000 square miles, and that "about 7,000 square miles would have been so severely contaminated that survival would depend upon the most prompt protective measures."

CD officials think now that citizens know what the effects of an H-bomb blast could be, they might take more interest in volunteer posts and help strengthen the whole CD setup.

Gen. Kreber thinks Ohioans need an educational program to acquaint them with the importance of an adequate CD program. Recently, in testifying before the House Finance Committee to explain his request for about $348,000 to operate the CD program for the next biennium (an increase of $112,031 over the current biennium ending June 30), the general said:

"The civilian population does not know what it means to have a bomb dropped on a community. We must know how to take care of ourselves. We must have training, medical supplies... so that we can get back on our feet."

"I think civil defense is necessary, for the very purpose of taking care of our citizens. Civil defense in Ohio is not satisfactory because we do not get the cooperation to do the things that should be done."

The state can plan and direct, but it's still up to the local CD units to perfect their organization. To do that most of the cities must have volunteers, money, and equipment. All three of these problems still plague the local units as well as the state staff, and together they form the biggest block still to be cleared before Ohio can claim adequate defense.

Banks In District Boost Resources

CLEVELAND (AP)—Total resources of members banks in the 4th Federal Reserve District totaled $13,815,000,000 at the end of 1954, an increase of $429 million during the year.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, making figures public here, said the earnings of 633 member banks in the district came to $384 million in 1954, compared to $364 million for the previous year. The district covers Ohio, parts of western Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Emergency Order Sets Up Plan If President Isolated

WASHINGTON (AP)—An aggressor could not save himself from a quick atomic counterblow by making the President a victim of a sneak attack on the United States. That is the meat of a firm order from the military high command which has been issued to the Strategic Air Command.

Law specifies that only the President may order the use of atomic weapons, but it may be said on the highest authority that provision has been made for an emergency in which the chief executive might be incapacitated or isolated.

Whatever the mechanics, this much is certain: The No. 1 mission of the Defense Department would be to hit back with all available power. And No. 2 would be interception of second-wave attacks.

Michigander Gets High Army Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army has appointed Frank J. Millard, former Michigan attorney general, as general counsel succeeding John G. Adams, a key figure in the Army-McCarthy row.

Adams' resignation, previously announced, becomes effective March 31. And the Army's new senior legal official will take office the following day.

Millard who has practiced law in Flint, Mich., since 1916, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, a former city attorney for Flint and was state attorney general from January 1951 to December 1954.

Cleveland Cops Pose As Marines

CLEVELAND (AP)—Posing as Marines, police vice squadmen have made a dozen or more arrests here this winter.

The Marine uniform disguise came to light when a taxicab driver lost his license yesterday in a hearing. Police said the driver directed two of the detectives, dressed as Marines, to an east side house of prostitution.

Winchell Gives Settlement After Calling Editor 'Red'

NEW YORK (AP)—A statement ending a $1,525,000 libel suit brought against Walter Winchell, columnist and commentator, has been published by the New York Daily Mirror and broadcast by the American Broadcasting Co.

The suit was filed against Winchell by the New York Post and its editor, James A. Wechsler. They charged that Winchell in his column and his radio and television broadcasts had tried to create the impression that the Post and Wechsler were supporters of the Communist party and disloyal to the United States.

In today's editions the Mirror published this statement:

"Walter Winchell has authorized the editor to state that he never said or meant to say in the Mirror or over the air that the New York Post or its publisher, or Mr. James A. Wechsler, its editor, are Communists or sympathetic to communism. If anything which Mr. Winchell said was so construed, he regrets and withdraws it."

"The Mirror too, wishes to retract any statement which was subject to such construction."

"Diverse litigation now pending between the Post and its editor and the Hearst Corp., American Broadcasting Co., and Mr. Winchell has been discontinued by all parties, thus ending a lengthy controversy."

The statement was published as one of the conditions for settlement of the libel actions against Winchell. Also named as defendants were ABC, the Gruen Watch Co. Inc., sponsor of Winchell's broadcast program; the Hearst Corp., and King Features Syndicate, Inc.

ABC last night broadcast a statement similar to that published by the Mirror on behalf of Winchell, the Gruen Watch Co., and ABC.

In suits filed Dec. 17, 1952, Wechsler sought $775,000 in damages and the Post sought $750,000. As part of the settlement, announced last Friday, the defendants agreed to pay lawyer fees and expenses totaling $30,000 for Wechsler and the Post. Agreement papers filed with the State Supreme Court show that no other money was involved in the settlement.

Sheppard Appeal Is Delayed Again

CLEVELAND (AP)—Filing of an appeal brief for Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard has now been delayed until next Saturday, his attorney, William J. Corrigan said.

A hearing of the appeal from Sheppard's Dec. 21 conviction for second degree murder in the bludgeon death of his wife, Marilyn, at their Bay Village home last July 4 is set for May 5.

Corrigan said he still is waiting a report from Dr. Paul L. Kirk, criminologist the convicted osteopath hired to conduct a post-trial investigation. Kirk has been studying evidence in his laboratory at the University of California.

Ohio Civil Defense Setup Beginning To Take Shape

Editor's Note: Following is the first of two articles concerning Ohio's plans to ward off any attack by an enemy.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, (AP)—Is Ohio prepared to ward off the damaging effect of an enemy H-bomb or A-bomb attack?

Not now, civil defense authorities agree. But the picture is brightening.

Perhaps in a matter of months the state CD organization may be in a much better position than it is today. But first many things must be done, chief among them is the solution to the oldest problem: Getting cooperation of the public, full participation of the state's citizens in the program already outlined.

In the past few weeks some steps have been taken which might bring about greater citizen interest.

One of the principal complaints of local CD authorities in the past has been that they "didn't know where they were going" and that state and national CD authorities were not telling them just what should be done, and how.

Now, Gen. Leo M. Kreber, adjutant general of Ohio and state CD chief, and his staff, have sent out a tentative program for reorganization. It divides the state into five CD areas centered around the nine principal target cities (Toledo, Cleveland, Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Steubenville, Dayton, Cincinnati and Columbus). It gives a pre-attack dispersal plan, makes provisions for reorganizing CD authorities within the state.

Local CD organizations now have these plans and can go to work making evacuation arrangements and arranging disaster relief in their own areas.

The state made its move after national CD authorities, and the Atomic Energy Commission, released some information on the H-bomb needed for proper planning. Defense Administrator Val Peterson told Congress the situation did not look too good and that there was no question in his mind that target cities would have to be evacuated.

Earlier, the AEC in a bulletin to all CD leaders had reported that in a single H-bomb blast the fallout danger could continue for a long period over an area of 14,000 square miles, and that "about 7,000 square miles would have been so severely contaminated that survival would depend upon the most prompt protective measures."

CD officials think now that citizens know what the effects of an H-bomb blast could be, they might take more interest in volunteer posts and help strengthen the whole CD setup.

Gen. Kreber thinks Ohioans need an educational program to acquaint them with the importance of an adequate CD program. Recently, in testifying before the House Finance Committee to explain his request for about $348,000 to operate the CD program for the next biennium (an increase of $12,031 over the current biennium ending June 30), the general said:

"The civilian population does not know what it means to have a bomb dropped on a community. We must know how to take care of ourselves. We must have training, medical supplies . . . so that we can get back on our feet."

"I think civil defense is necessary, for the very purpose of taking care of our citizens. Civil defense in Ohio is not satisfactory because we do not get the cooperation to do the things that should be done."

The state can plan and direct, but it's still up to the local CD units to perfect their organization. To do that most of the cities must have volunteers, money, and equipment. All three of these problems still plague the local units as well as the state staff, and together they form the biggest block still to be cleared before Ohio can claim adequate defense.

Banks In District Boost Resources

CLEVELAND (AP)—Total resources of members banks in the 4th Federal Reserve District totaled $13,815,000,000 at the end of 1954, an increase of $429 million during the year.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, making figures public here, said the earnings of 633 member banks in the district came to $384 million in 1954, compared to $364 million for the previous year. The district covers Ohio, parts of western Pennsylvania, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Green is a sacred color to Moslems, who carry a green flag and have prayer rugs with green backgrounds.

Emergency Order Sets Up Plan If President Isolated

WASHINGTON (AP)—An aggressor could not save himself from a quick atomic counterblow by making the President a victim of a sneak attack on the United States. That is the meat of a firm order from the military high command which has been issued to the Strategic Air Command.

Law specifies that only the President may order the use of atomic weapons, but it may be said on the highest authority that provision has been made for an emergency in which the chief executive might be incapacitated or isolated.

"Whatever the mechanics, this much is certain: The No. 1 mission of the Defense Department would be to hit back with all available power."

And No. 2 would be interception of second-wave attacks.

Michigander Gets High Army Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army has appointed Frank J. Millard, former Michigan attorney general, as general counsel succeeding John G. Adams, a key figure in the Army-McCarthy row.

Adams' resignation, previously announced, becomes effective March 31. And the Army's new senior legal official will take office the following day.

Millard who has practiced law in Flint, Mich., since 1916, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, a former city attorney for Flint and was state attorney general from January 1951 to December 1954.

Cleveland Cops Pose As Marines

CLEVELAND (AP)—Posing as Marines, police vice squadmen have made a dozen or more arrests here this winter.

The Marine uniform disguise came to light when a taxicab driver lost his license yesterday in a hearing. Police said the driver directed two of the detectives, dressed as Marines, to an east side house of prostitution.

Winchell Gives Settlement After Calling Editor 'Red'

NEW YORK (AP)—A statement ending a $1,525,000 libel suit brought against Walter Winchell, columnist and commentator, has been published by the New York Daily Mirror and broadcast by the American Broadcasting Co.

The suit was filed against Winchell by the New York Post and its editor, James A. Wechsler. They charged that Winchell in his column and his radio and television broadcasts had tried to create the impression that the Post and Wechsler were supporters of the Communist party and disloyal to the United States.

In today's editions the Mirror published this statement:

"Walter Winchell has authorized the editor to state that he never said or meant to say in the Mirror or over the air that the New York Post or its publisher, or Mr. James A. Wechsler, its editor, are Communists or sympathetic to communism. If anything which Mr. Winchell said was so construed, he regrets and withdraws it."

"The Mirror too, wishes to retract any statement which was subject to such construction."

"Diverse litigation now pending between the Post and its editor and the Hearst Corp., American Broadcasting Co., and Mr. Winchell has been discontinued by all parties, thus ending a lengthy controversy."

the Mirror on behalf of Winchell, the Gruen Watch Co., and ABC.

In suits filed Dec. 17, 1952, Wechsler sought $775,000 in damages and the Post sought $750,000.

As part of the settlement, announced last Friday, the defendants agreed to pay lawyer fees and expenses totaling $30,000 for Wechsler and the Post. Agreement papers filed with the State Supreme Court show that no other money was involved in the settlement.

WASHINGTON (AP)—What happens to Harold E. Stassen is of less importance to the people of Asia than what happens to American aid for them. President Eisenhower will have to consider both problems soon.

What Eisenhower does about Stassen will be of primary concern to Stassen. What the President does about aid for Asia may in the end mean the difference between keeping that area out of communism or losing it.

Stassen, three times a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination and now a loyal Eisenhower supporter, is a lame-duck boss. He heads the Foreign Operations Administration, due by law to end June 30.

FOA has handled this country's foreign aid program. The government is certain to continue that aid to some degree and in some way. Congress could keep FOA alive another year but seems in no mood to do so.

It's not in the mood to hand out much money either. FOA's work may be handed over entirely to the State Department or split up among other agencies. Eisenhower could keep Stassen as aid boss under the State Department or give him some other job.

Stassen yesterday issued a report on FOA's work during the last six months of 1954. But the administration still hasn't sent Congress its request—it will in April—for the amount of aid it wants to give in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Stassen said requests for all foreign aid spending in the next fiscal year will be held to 3 billion dollars—Asia's share would have to come out of that—compared with $5,300,000,000 made available this year.

But no matter how much money Congress votes, the aid program could well be wrecked by delay and confusion if it is divided among agencies instead of under some central direction.

Secretary of State Dulles returned from his Asian trip last week expressing confidence about the future of the area—that is, on the chances of keeping it out of Red hands.

He spoke happily about the military alliances this country has made in Asia to forestall Red armies. He was vague on this country's economic help for the Asians.

Danes Hike Tax

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—A government austerity program designed to curb inflation has been approved by Parliament 89-86. It includes higher excise taxes on consumer goods and aims to raise 65 to 70 million dollars annually for two years. Approval enabled the minority Socialist government to survive an economic Cabinet crisis.

economic despair the Asians throw up their hands at Western alliances and turn to the Reds for a way out of chaos, hunger, ignorance, poverty.

The Eisenhower administration is cutting spending on the armed forces, so it can be expected to be tight on any aid program. The size of the aid it gives, therefore, is a gamble.

Station Wagon Rolls 3 Blocks

BALTIMORE (AP)—A station wagon carrying two small children rolled backward for nearly three blocks yesterday, narrowly missing a loaded dump truck before crashing into a fire plug. The children were not hurt.

Mrs. Victor J. Wojcikowski told police she parked her car in suburban Catonsville and went into a store. She said one of the children mowed down a mailbox and a "no parking" sign before coming to rest atop the fire plug.

That Fairfield County 'W' Actually Is 'W' After All

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—It now turns out the "W" used on some 1955 Ohio motor vehicle license plates wasn't an inverted "M" after all.

It was a new style "W" the inmates at Ohio Penitentiary dreamed up to solve the problem of fitting big letters into a small space.

That was the explanation given Monday by W. I. Bishop, penitentiary business manager in charge of plate manufacture.

The ruckus started last week when Fairfield County residents noticed the "W" on their license plates looked more like an inverted "M." The state motor vehicle bureau checked, said that was the case, and the misfit plates were called in.

But Monday, observers in Youngstown reported plates in Mahoning County also bore a "W" which wasn't regulation style, but neither was it an upside-down "M".

This really put the motor vehicle bureau in a state of confusion. What kind of "W" did they get in Mahoning County?

Robert T. Scott, bureau auditor in charge of plate distribution, said a check was being made to see if the Mahoning County "W" was the same one used in Fairfield County, or a different type letter altogether.

Scott said the bureau never planned to issue plates with more than a combination of five letters and numbers. But an increase in vehicle registration of some one million since 1947 required six letters and numbers be used. This necessitated fitting more type in the same space, and led to the current situation, he said.

Bishop said a substitute letter "W" dye was made up by prison inmates last year when it was found two regular "W's" side by side couldn't be fitted on the standard 12-inch long plate. The substitute "W" appeared to be an upside-down "M", he explained.

After the Fairfield County letter mixup came to light, an entirely new "W" was designed at the prison for use on 1956 plates, Bishop said.

All "misfit" plates will be legally recognized until a decision is made to replace them, said Scott.

At 102, Company Chief Still Active

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Retire at the age of 65! Why? demands Capt. George C. McGuire, who is 102 and still runs his business.

His company catches sea lions and ships them to zoos and circuses all over the world. Capt. McGuire has stunned many a sea lion by clubbing it over the head. Now the animals are trapped with nets.

The captain just supervises the business now. His employees cruise off nearby Santa Cruz Island to catch the sea lions.

Giveaway Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has announced it will donate 20,400,000 pounds of surplus butter and 12 million pounds of surplus cheese for foreign welfare use in April and May. The products will be distributed abroad by private welfare agencies.

Pilot Whales Prove To Be Poor Pilots

WESTRAY, Orkney Islands (AP)—The County Council here may have to hire trawlers to get rid of 63 pilot whales that turned out to be pretty poor pilots.

The fish, members of the Dolphin family about 10 feet long, rushed into shallow waters at the Point of Cott yesterday and gasped their last after the receding tide stranded them.

The Council says it may have to tow the carcasses out to sea to prevent them becoming a sanitary hazard. The Orkneys are off the coast of Scotland.

THE DAUGHTER of millionaire contractor J. A. Thompson of Los Angeles, Mrs. Norma T. McCauley (above), 32, has been granted a divorce from the husband she calls a "domestic dictator." She told Superior Judge Harold C. Shepherd, "I am four feet, 10 inches tall and haven't weighed more than 97 pounds for years, but he complained I was too fat." Her suit said her husband, Frank E. McCauley, 38, gave her the "silent treatment" for weeks when she "failed to respond to military commands." (International)

Hoover Asks U.S. To Quit Loan Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Hoover Commission says it believes private enterprise should be allowed to take over many of the government's extensive lending and loan guarantee activities.

Such a reorganization, the commission estimated, would mean the Treasury could recapture about $64 billion in capital funds. Furthermore, it said the step would mean an annual saving to the government of about $200 million.

According to the report, federal loans, guarantees and insurance now total $244 billion.

Among the agencies whose functions the commission tagged for transfer to private enterprise were the Federal Housing Administration and the Rural Electrification Administration. The FHA insures loans for home buyers. The REA lends money to cooperatives for construction of facilities to provide electric and telephone service to rural areas.

One recommendation almost certain to arouse controversy called for an end of government price support loans to farmers. The commission suggested instead that the government enter into crop purchase contracts at support levels. The farmer then could choose whether to sell his crop to the government or to private parties.

One member of the commission, Rep. Hollifield (D-Calif.), entered a strong dissent, contending the plan "would make it harder for American citizens to buy homes or to get loans for their farms or businesses."

Pilot Whales Prove To Be Poor Pilots

WESTRAY, Orkney Islands (AP)—The County Council here may have to hire trawlers to get rid of 63 pilot whales that turned out to be pretty poor pilots.

The fish, members of the Dolphin family about 10 feet long, rushed into shallow waters at the Point of Cott yesterday and gasped their last after the receding tide stranded them.

The Council says it may have to tow the carcasses out to sea to prevent them becoming a sanitary hazard. The Orkneys are off the coast of Scotland.

THE DAUGHTER of millionaire contractor J. A. Thompson of Los Angeles, Mrs. Norma T. McCauley (above), 32, has been granted a divorce from the husband she calls a "domestic dictator." She told Superior Judge Harold C. Shepherd, "I am four feet, 10 inches tall and haven't weighed more than 97 pounds for years, but he complained I was too fat." Her suit said her husband, Frank E. McCauley, 38, gave her the "silent treatment" for weeks when she "failed to respond to military commands." (International)

Hoover Asks U.S. To Quit Loan Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Hoover Commission says it believes private enterprise should be allowed to take over many of the government's extensive lending and loan guarantee activities.

Such a reorganization, the commission estimated, would mean the Treasury could recapture about $64 billion in capital funds. Furthermore, it said the step would mean an annual saving to the government of about $200 million.

According to the report, federal loans, guarantees and insurance now total $244 billion.

Among the agencies whose functions the commission tagged for transfer to private enterprise were the Federal Housing Administration and the Rural Electrification Administration. The REA insures loans for home buyers. The REA lends money to cooperatives for construction of facilities to provide electric and telephone service to rural areas.

One recommendation almost certain to arouse controversy called for an end of government price support loans to farmers. The commission suggested instead that the government enter into crop purchase contracts at support levels. The farmer then could choose whether to sell his crop to the government or to private parties.

One member of the commission, Rep. Hollifield (D-Calif.), entered a strong dissent, contending the plan "would make it harder for American citizens to buy homes or to get loans for their farms or businesses."

The Missouri valley extends from Montana to Missouri, including parts of 10 states, and embraces nearly one-sixth of the total area of the United States.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

SURVIVAL SCHOOL—IF YOU LIVE YOU PASS

By H. D. CRAWFORD
Central Press Correspondent

OTTAWA — Travel in the vast Far North is mostly by air, and when emergencies ground airmen in the Arctic the biggest problem is how to survive.

The Royal Canadian Air Force is conducting a survival school that is training several hundred airmen each year how to land in the Arctic and live. Among students taking this tough but vital course are airmen of the United States Air Force.

Commanding officer of the survival school is Squadron Leader Scott E. Alexander, of Vancouver, B. C., former member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with years of Arctic experience. Along with other carefully selected officers, the instructional staff includes Eskimos, Indians, and trappers who are experts in Far North survival.

"There is nothing really mysterious about the North," says Squadron Leader Alexander. "Survival is merely a question of knowing just what the dangers are, how to recognize them, and how to take advantage of the resources of the country. It is a matter of using common sense plus various techniques."

"YOU HAVE to know how to make the North work for you, and all the courage and determination in the world won't help you unless you have that know-how," Squadron Leader Alexander concludes.

This Far Arctic training is the last phase of an intensive survival course that starts farther south in the conventional way. Instructional toughening begins in the classroom at Edmonton. Survival students for four days watch films, attend lectures, do a vigorous brushup on swimming, and study personal hygiene in relation to Arctic survival problems.

Experienced woodsmen then take over the trainees for 11 days in the "bush." The airmen learn to make nature work for them. Their practical training consists of building shelter, lighting fires properly, hunting, making fish nets, and applying other valuable methods of finding edible food that will keep them alive.

Instructors demonstrate numerous ways the equipment carried in RCAF emergency packs can be used to obtain food, build shelter, and save life.

CAMBRIDGE BAY, stage of the final week of survival training, is on Victoria island in the Northwest Territories 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle. Winters there are rugged. Sometimes 70-mile winds blast the trainees in 50-below temperature.

Eskimo-built igloos provide their only winter shelter. All survival

An Eskimo shows survival school airmen how to build an igloo.

Survival school trainees pull trout through 7 1/2-foot ice.

students are required also to sleep in para-igloo shelters, consisting of snow-block walls and parachute ceiling. Expert Eskimo igloo builders train survival students to build their own igloo.

Fishing through ice up to 70 inches thick is another vital part of the curriculum. The trainee learns to use his small emergency pack under these rigorous conditions.

THIS KIT includes a sleeping bag, radio, concentrated food, a 22 rifle and 50 rounds of ammunition, 25 feet of snare wire, fishing tackle, "windflammer" matches and fire tablets, small primus-type stove and fuel. With careful handling and proper know-how, this equipment is expected to keep a man alive for at least two weeks. His own ingenuity can prolong survival.

Other vital survival equipment in the emergency pack includes a first-aid kit, eyeshade to prevent snow-blindness, sewing kit, plastic whistle, axe, socks, mukluks, gloves and mitts, flares for night signals, and a hand-signalling mirror.

The tiny two-way, battery-operated radio may be the real lifesaver, for it helps the downed airman guide a search party or aircraft to his rescue.

The summer pack includes a small, one-man dinghy which an airman can inflate if he lands in water. This summer kit also includes sunburn lotion and all-important insect repellent to combat the dreaded black flies. The winter kit has a snowknife for building igloos or clearing underbrush.

The RCAF hopes to put all its airmen through the survival school twice, once in summer and once in winter. Valuable lessons learned about survival in the Far North, human reactions to extreme cold, and equipment vital and practical in meeting emergency situations—these are equally important to civilian pilots and to anybody who chooses to meet the challenge of North America's last great barrier.

U. S. Women Have Victorian Hangover On Love-Pinza

By The Associated Press

Ezio Pinza, an authority in such matters, says love is a two-way street. The dashing singing star thinks the main trouble, as far as American women are concerned is that "they have a Victorian hangover."

"They've been taught since childhood that it's not proper for a woman ever to pursue a man," says Pinza, the man who started a new style in middle-aged matinee idols with his appearance in "South Pacific."

"This is all very well, but sometimes a man likes to be pursued. Sometimes a wife should take the lead to make up after a quarrel."

Pinza is strictly an old-fashioned husband and father, he says, with stern ideas about woman's place and children's discipline.

"In any good marriage, the wife should stay at home, take care of the children, cook and keep house," he says. "If she thinks she must take a job to help out with the family income, let her do without a few new dresses and hats instead."

"The main reason so many married women work is that they are always buying things. They are not satisfied to live simply and make the best of what they have. They must always be striving for something else."

Mrs. Pinza, a former ballet dancer with the Metropolitan Opera, agrees with her handsome husband, he reports, and happily runs their Stamford, Conn., home and takes care of their four children, ranging in age from 4 to 13.

"My wife says now she wonders why she ever wanted a career," says Pinza. "Naturally, I made it a condition of marriage that she give up her dancing professionally."

Pinza, currently in the new musical "Fanny," wants to make it clear that he is a great admirer of American women, and wouldn't trade his American wife for any docile European glamor girl. But he believes that many American marriages might be happier if governed along Latin lines. For example:

"The husband must be the boss. He must say what is to be done and what is not to be done. That is the only way."

FISH DON'T LIKE MUD

AS A RULE sportsmen are enthusiastically in favor of soil and water conservation (the two being inseparable), and there is good reason.

The Sport Fishing Institute of Washington, D. C., reports, in the lead article in its March bulletin, on some special research financed by the Outdoor Boating Club of America, with Oklahoma as the testing ground.

The object of the research was to ascertain what effect turbidity has upon fishing. D. Homer Buck was in charge. Buck removed all fish from a series of ponds and then restocked them with fish of known number, size and species, in 1954. Certain ponds were clear. Some were muddy and some were intermediate in turbidity.

During the season largemouth bass, planted as one-year-olds, increased in weight about 6.5-fold in the clear ponds, 4-fold in the intermediate waters and only 1.5-fold in muddy waters.

Muddiness also affected reproduction. Bass reproduced in 7 of 12 clear ponds, in 4 of 12 intermediate ponds and in none of the 9 muddy ponds.

Plankton studies also showed that food for aquatic life is produced immensely better in clear ponds than in turbid ones. Plankton was nearly 14 times greater in the surface waters of the clear ponds.

The studies will be continued this year, and before long there will be a more conclusive report. All of which shows why it is necessary to prevent mud-producing erosion on the watersheds if lakes and ponds are to be good for fishing.

TWO THREATS

IN ADDITION TO human suffering during the cold weather of the flooded Ohio River areas, which is always a tragic phase of floods, there is heavy property damage and water erosion of the soil.

While this is happening on one front, experts report that there are millions of acres of loose, dry soil in the Southwest ready to be lifted into the air by the erosive effect of normally high March and April winds.

Spring is the most damaging of all seasons to the soil because of floods and winds. Before spring begins, floods have started in one region of the country and concern sets in about the probable erosion of high winds.

Soil conservation is a growing challenge to America. Just now there are billions of units of stored crop surpluses, suggesting that America has too much arable land. Such a presumption is perilous in view of rapidly growing population and the possibility that much of the rest of the world, as in the past, will be in the future reliant upon the products of American soil.

The nation is engaged in a vastly expanded highway improvement program. It would be well if America could find the resources for a similarly increased attack on soil erosion. Super-highways serving bar-

These Days

To the Sons of Han, what we call China is Chung Kuo, the Middle Kingdom, the center of the universe. To understand what is happening on the mainland of China and on the island of Formosa, in the Malaya Peninsula and Indonesia where there are millions of Chinese, it is necessary to grasp the deep, abiding sense of superiority which is innate in the Chinese tradition.

Liang Chi-chao, who was one of the great intellects of the Revolution of 1911, once described China in these terms:

"The greatest country in the greatest of the five continents of the world,—which is it? My country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land! The people who number one-third of the human race,—who are they? My countrymen of the Middle State, the Flowery Land! Annals which extend back without a break for over four thousand years,—of what country are these?"

"Of my country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land! My country contains four hundred million inhabitants, who all speak what is fundamentally the same language, and use the same script: of no other country can this be said. Her ancient books hand down events which have occurred during more than thirty centuries past: of no other country can this be said."

Then he added:
"... my country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land, stands proudly alone, having survived, in one unbroken line, ever increasing in size and brilliancy, down to the present day. And in the future it will spread into a myriad branches, to be fused together in one furnace. Ah, beautiful is my country!"

"Ah, great are my countrymen! Now, ere inditing a rough outline of their story, I must purify myself thrice with perfume and the bath; then, looking up to heaven, with many prostrations, thank God that I was born in this lovely land, as one of the sons of this great people."

This concept of China is held by all Chinese, Nationalists, Communists and just plain people. It is held by the Chinese in Peking, Taipei, Jakarta, Hongkong and Singapore. Back in the days when foreign countries held concessions and settlements in China and collected the customs and the salt tax, Chinese would smile and say that it will not last long—that the day would come when those who enslaved their country would be driven into the sea. Chinese believe that what was once Chinese will be Chinese again; that a people who once were influenced by the culture of China will be so influenced again.

It is this profound sense of nationalism that is most fundamental among the Chinese and those who have ever believed that they could subordinate the Chinese people to their will must sooner or later realize that this enormous population, this vast accumulation of human beings, perhaps the most fecund of mankind, cannot be subdued. They have a way of restoring themselves as they have done a dozen times in their history.

Internal strife is not new or unusual for China and it takes on forms in that land which are hardly understandable to the Western mind, for while these revolutions change dynasties, they do not change China. The brilliant French scholar and traveller, the Abbe Huc, as early as 1854, recognized the revolutionary character of these people. He wrote:

ren areas that might have been saved would be tragic.

PERSISTENT pain is probably the chief symptom of neuritis. Fortunately, there is a lot doctors can do to relieve that pain.

There are many causes of multiple neuritis, and if we can determine the reason for the distress, we can use specific treatment. However, there are several general measures we can take, whether we know the exact cause or not.

Pain-Relieving Drugs

Drugs, of course, are frequently used to provide relief from neuritis. Pain-relieving drugs taken by mouth three times a day, as prescribed by your doctor, for example, are frequently helpful.

As for local application, I advise gentle rubbing of your affected limb with methyl salicylate liniment. Then wrap it in flannel. Gentle massage is usually helpful, too, but don't begin any massage treatments while your muscles are still tender. Heat is important, both as a cure and to help relieve pain.

Use Infra-Red Lamp

During the acute stages, you can use an infra-red lamp twice a day. Place the lamp about two feet from your affected limb. Keep the heat on it for from 15 to 30 minutes. Be very careful not to burn yourself.

Another effective way of applying heat is the Kenny hot fomentation. Wet flannels in boiling water and wring them out. Then wrap them around the affected limb, leaving the joints free. Cover with cellophane or oil silk wrappings to keep in the moisture and the heat.

Change the Pack

Change the pack every four hours when the patient is awake, but leave it on all night long. Later, as progress toward recovery begins, short wave diathermy once a day is beneficial. Passive exercises must be started as soon as possible. However, you've got to be careful about overstretching.

I think you'll find that the foot-board of your bed will be helpful in this respect. Place your feet against the board when stretching. It will prevent you from stretching too much.

If your legs are affected, it is best to use a cradle device to keep the bed clothes from touching them.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. W.: What causes a person to see tiny white spots before the eyes? My blood pressure and kidneys are all right.

Answer: The appearance of spots before the eyes may be due to constipation, to a defect in the vision, to high blood pressure, or to migraine.

In order to determine the cause of your difficulty, and to have proper treatment prescribed, it would be advisable for you to consult a physician.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

MURPHY picked up his sandwich; so did Fred. "The thing to remember, Murphy, is not the wide spaces between folks here, but the basic fact that I'm the only doctor available for 3,000 of those folks. If you had the same number exclusively allotted to you in the city, you'd hop around pretty lively, too, and do all sorts of things."

"Then I'm glad we've got the specialist system in St. Louis. And, speaking of that, Fritz, I had a problem in your own field just a month before I took this vacation. I wished I had you handy then, and I've been waiting for a chance to talk to you about it."

Fred glanced at his watch. But he didn't take long to tell you. Especially if I skip the rather involved means by which we got this patient. She came in from a doctor upstate. Her husband was rich, an industrialist of some kind. She had developed terrific headaches. They'd had her to Mayo's, and had spent a year in Tucson—she had a history of asthma—and when this constant head-pain developed, she was sure it was a brain tumor."

Fred reached for a cookie. "Probably polyps."

"Yes. Her doctor at home thought so. Now, Katie, I'm not calling Fred a country doctor."

"You might," laughed Fred. "I am one."

"A good one, and so was her doctor. However, when a patient gets a notion that her brain is affected—"

"Sure. Go on."

"Well, she came in, since her doctor had said he hoped she could have these polyps surgically removed by a specialist—Her whole physical condition was bad. Thin—secondary anemia—and neurotic. Funderburk told me to work along with Gottschalk—he's our top nose and throat man these days—and when the woman was admitted, we ordered the routine tests, among them the venous pressure test with an upright apparatus to give us a picture of the right heart and its pressure, as well as decholin intravenously to test the left heart pressure."

He glanced up at Fred, who had leaned toward him, his eyes very bright.

Murphy shrugged. "We got instant collapse. Sudden! Dead before we knew it."

Fred sighed and got up from his chair.

"It seems positive that she was sensitive to decholin," said Murphy, somewhat anxiously.

"What did Gottschalk think?"

"He said he didn't know. That he questioned its being an allergin."

"So do I," Fred agreed.

"But then what? It's a routine test."

"I want to show you something," Fred went into the hall, opened his bag, and took out a package which was still wrapped to go through the mail. He ripped off the outer paper, and laid the box at Murphy's hand. "Read that," he said, turning on his heel, leaving the house.

Murphy was still "reading that" when the station wagon went down the street. Printed rather large upon the box—which contained the bile product, decholin—were the words, "Not to be used in cases of asthma."

Murphy sat staring straight before him. Katie got up and began to clear the table. "Fred forgot his bag..." she said in a troubled tone.

Murphy looked at her thoughtfully.

"It's only a block—don't you want to take it down to him?"

"Later, maybe. Right now, Katie, I'm going out in the yard. And sit. D'you mind?"

"Of course not. But watch the sun. It burns quickly at this altitude."

Without answering her, he went out through the kitchen, and across the porch. Katie picked up the blue box and read the label. She took it to Fred's bag, her eyes shining but thoughtful, too. It had not taken this, of course, to tell her that Fred was much smarter than Murphy Hudson, but it was pleasant to have concrete evidence.

Murphy was all right, she guessed. He was a pretty good doctor, knew enough for his purposes. And he could be darned nice. This morning, when he'd hugged her shoulders, he'd left Katie in a rosy glow, though she knew him too thoroughly to be taken in by his tricks of charm.

The thing he lacked, and which Fred had in abundance, was a certain individual spark. Murphy knew what he had learned from books, what other doctors had taught him. Murphy would never in the world be able to do Fred's job, out here in the Valley, alone, because Murphy lacked the initiative which was Fred's, the ability to know a thing for himself, and if not, to study so that he would know it. Matters like Fred's masks—she knew without asking that Murphy did no research. He hadn't the will, or the imagination—or the genius—which that sort of investigation took. He couldn't solve problems for himself.

So, no wonder he wanted Fred. Her dishes washed, her kitchen tidy and Murphy still stretched out in the long chair under the cottonwood, Katie gathered up her basket of garden tools and dahlias roots, put on the green-thumbed canvas gloves which Jessie had given her at Christmas and went out to work in her flower beds, and to talk to Murphy. With the dining room window open, she could hear the phone.

At her approach, Murphy opened one black eye. "Don't you ever rest?"

Katie put her basket on the grass, sat down beside it, and began to examine the dahlias roots. "This is resting. I like digging in the ground. Don't you?"

"My gardening," he drawled, "is done strictly from Witek's."

Katie laughed. "Do they still have those marvelous windows?"

"And such marvelous prices!"

"Well, I wouldn't know about that. Did you go to sleep?"

"Dozed. I'm going to have to leave you kids the first of the week, Katie. You've been grand to me."

"It's been good for Fred. He misses having other doctors to talk to. And then, you're friends."

Murphy smiled. "That's right," he agreed warmly. "For years and years."

"I've often wondered why," said Katie, her pretty face absorbed by the dirt which she was crumbling between her fingers.

"Why we're friends?"

"Yes. You're not much alike."

"No, we're not. But perhaps that's why the friendship has persisted. Fred and I are a great deal like a well-matched married couple, Katie. We bring out the best in each other. He spoke seriously and honestly. Fred stirs up what noble instincts I have. And I bring his ideals down to earth enough to make them practical."

WASHINGTON—High government officials' review of Harvey Matusow's accusations against Communists in the courts and before congressional committees has convinced them that his recantations are part of a Red plot hatched in the Kremlin to discredit the American counter-original testimony? (2) Did his lies affect basic decisions with regard to convictions or suspensions? (3) Did his data seriously damage the status of government officials against whom he bore witness?

Brownell anticipates a negative answer in almost every case now under study and possible reconsideration.

CONSPIRACY—Brownell cites various developments as evidence that Matusow is only an automaton in a far-reaching and cleverly concocted Communist conspiracy to discredit American justice.

In the first place, the smelters' union which advanced $1,500 in royalties for Matusow's book, "False Witness," is notoriously radical and was therefore expelled by the parent organization.

Both of Matusow's publishers have taken refuge behind the Fifth Amendment in answer to senatorial questions as to whether they were communists.

THREATENED—Brownell's investigators also have satisfied themselves that Matusow underwent the same experiences suffered by all Communists who turn against the party and reveal its secret machinations on the witness stand before a Capitol Hill group or a federal jury.

They are immediately subjected to tremendous pressure to recant under penalty of retaliation. The psychological treatment is not administered only by old friends in Communist circles; it is brought by their families, their children, their business associates, with offers of reward as well as threats of punishment. Since they are usually "emotionally unstable" in the first instance, they frequently crack up and become wholly irresponsible.

The most disturbing aspect of the Matusow retractions, in the opinion of Brownell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, is the impetus it has given to the demand that every accused person be confronted by accusers. This is the principal objective behind the current flip-flops of the Matusow-Natvig-Watson band.

MONEY, TIME—"We spend months and thousands of dollars," explained a high official, "to infiltrate a federal agent or co-worker into their cells. Their reports are invaluable, and we would be almost helpless without them. Where would we be today without the confidential information from Chambers, Budenz and Bentley?"

"So, the one thing the Communies want is the identification of our undercover men. It would smash our whole investigative organization and techniques. This is their 'baby.' If they could force disclosure of our secret informants, it would put us out of business."

Brownell does not object to confrontation when the accuser is a neighbor, a friend, a fellow worker or a casual tipster. In fact, he would like to arrange it so that unidentifiable witnesses could make their depositions before a federal judge or some reliable body, before use in any final trial.

But he agrees with Congress and the Supreme Court, which holds that confrontation is not necessary, that the security of the United States is paramount to individual interests.

FISH DON'T LIKE MUD
AS A RULE sportsmen are enthusiastically in favor of soil and water conservation (the two being inseparable), and there is good reason.

The Sport Fishing Institute of Washington, D. C., reports, in the lead article in its March bulletin, on some special research financed by the Outdoor Boating Club of America, with Oklahoma as the testing ground.

The object of the research was to ascertain what effect turbidity has upon fishing. D. Homer Buck was in charge. Buck removed all fish from a series of ponds and then restocked them with fish of known number, size and species, in 1954. Certain ponds were clear. Some were muddy and some were intermediate in turbidity.

During the season largemouth bass, planted as one-year-olds, increased in weight about 6.5-fold in the clear ponds, 4-fold in the intermediate waters and only 1.5-fold in muddy waters.

Muddiness also affected reproduction. Bass reproduced in 7 of 12 clear ponds, in 4 of 12 intermediate ponds and in none of the 9 muddy ponds.

Plankton studies also showed that food for aquatic life is produced immensely better in clear ponds than in turbid ones. Plankton was nearly 14 times greater in the surface waters of the clear ponds.

The studies will be continued this year, and before long there will be a more conclusive report. All of which shows why it is necessary to prevent mud-producing erosion on the watersheds if lakes and ponds are to be good for fishing.

TWO THREATS
IN ADDITION TO human suffering during the cold weather of the flooded Ohio River areas, which is always a tragic phase of floods, there is heavy property damage and water erosion of the soil.
While this is happening on one front, experts report that there are millions of acres of loose, dry soil in the Southwest ready to be lifted into the air by the erosive effect of normally high March and April winds.

Spring is the most damaging of all seasons to the soil because of floods and winds. Before spring begins, floods have started in one region of the country and concern sets in about the probable erosion of high winds.

Soil conservation is a growing challenge to America. Just now there are billions of units of stored crop surpluses, suggesting that America has too much arable land. Such a presumption is perilous in view of rapidly growing population and the possibility that much of the rest of the world, as in the past, will be in the future reliant upon the products of American soil.

The nation is engaged in a vastly expanded highway improvement program. It would be well if America could find the resources for a similarly increased attack on soil erosion. Super-highways serving bar-

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days
To the Sons of Han, what we call China is Chung Kuo, the Middle Kingdom, the center of the universe. To understand what is happening on the mainland of China and on the island of Formosa, in the Malaya Peninsula and Indonesia where there are millions of Chinese, it is necessary to grasp the deep, abiding sense of superiority which is innate in the Chinese tradition.
Liang Chi-chao, who was one of the great intellectuals of the Revolution of 1911, once described China in these terms:
"The greatest country in the world, which is it? My country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land! The people who number one-third of the human race—who are they? My countrymen of the Middle State, the Flowery Land! Annals which extend back without a break for over four thousand years,—of what country are these?"
"Of my country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land! My country contains four hundred million inhabitants, who all speak what is fundamentally the same language, and use the same script: of no other country can this be said. Her ancient books hand down events which have occurred during more than thirty centuries past: of no other country can this be said."
Then he added:
"... my country, the Middle State, the Flowery Land, stands proudly alone, having survived, in one unbroken line, ever increasing in size and brilliancy, down to the present day. And in the future it will spread into a myriad branches, to be fused together in one furnace. Ah, beautiful is my country!"
"Ah, great are my countrymen! Now, ere inditing a rough outline of their story, I must purify myself thrice with perfume and the bath; then, looking up to heaven, with many prostrations, thank God that I was born in this lovely land, as one of the sons of this great people."
This concept of China is held by all Chinese, Nationalists, Communists and just plain people. It is held by the Chinese in Peking, Taipei, Jakarta, Hongkong and Singapore. Back in the days when foreign countries held concessions and settlements in China and collected the customs and the salt tax, Chinese would smile and say that it will not last long—that the day would come when those who enslaved their country would be driven into the sea. Chinese believe that what was once Chinese will be Chinese again; that a people who once were influenced by the culture of China will be so influenced again.

It is this profound sense of nationalism that is most fundamental among the Chinese and those who have ever believed that they could subordinate the Chinese people to their will must sooner or later realize that this enormous population, this vast accumulation of human beings, perhaps the most fecund of mankind, cannot be subdued. They have a way of restoring themselves as they have done a dozen times in their history.

Internal strife is not new or unusual for China and it takes on forms in that land which are hardly understandable to the Western mind, for while these revolutions change dynasties, they do not change China. The brilliant French scholar and traveller, the Abbe Huc, as early as 1854, recognized the revolutionary character of these people. He wrote:

"It won't take long to tell you. Especially if I skip the rather involved means by which we got this patient. She came in from a doctor upstate. Her husband was rich, an industrialist of some kind. She had developed terrific headaches. They'd had her to Mayo's, and had spent a year in Tucson—she had a history of asthma—and when this constant head-pain developed, she was sure it was a brain tumor."
Fred reached for a cookie. "Probably polyps."
"Yes. Her doctor at home thought so. Now, Katie, I'm not calling Fred a country doctor."
"You might," laughed Fred. "I am one."
"A good one, and so was her doctor. However, when a patient gets a notion that her brain is affected—"
"Sure. Go on."
"Well, she came in, since her doctor had said he hoped she could have these polyps surgically removed by a specialist—Her whole physical condition was bad. Thin—secondary anemia—and neurotic. Funderburk told me to work along with Gottschalk—he's our top nose and throat man these days—and when the woman was admitted, we ordered the routine tests, among them the venous pressure test with an upright apparatus to give us a picture of the right heart and its pressure, as well as decholin intravenously to test the left heart pressure." He glanced at Fred, who had leaned toward him, his eyes very bright.
Murphy shrugged. "We got instant collapse. Sudden! Dead before we knew it."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
news behind the news
WASHINGTON—High government officials' review of Harvey Matusow's accusations against Communists in the courts and before congressional committees has convinced them that his recantations are part of a Red plot hatched in the Kremlin to discredit the American counter-offensive against the Soviet conspirators at home and abroad. Final decision on his motives, however, will rest with the judges in reconsidering earlier convictions and future litigation resulting from his evidence.
Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. has ordered every federal agency to check on each case against a government employee in which Matusow testified. It is understood that they constitute only a handful, and that the on-again-off-again witness was only a minor figure in these trials. He is described as a "bit player" in the drama which he seeks to rewrite and to restage.
The questions which the courts, congressional committees and federal agencies must resolve are: (1) Did Matusow lie in his original testimony? (2) Did his lies affect basic decisions with regard to convictions or suspensions? (3) Did his data seriously damage the status of government officials against whom he bore witness?
Brownell anticipates a negative answer in almost every case now under study and possible reconsideration.
CONSPIRACY—Brownell cites various developments as evidence that Matusow is only an automaton in a far-reaching and cleverly concocted Communist conspiracy to discredit American justice.
In the first place, the smelters' union which advanced $1,500 in royalties for Matusow's book, "False Witness," is notoriously radical and was therefore expelled by the parent organization. Both of Matusow's publishers have taken refuge behind the Fifth Amendment in answer to senatorial questions as to whether they were communists.
THREATENED—Brownell's investigators also have satisfied themselves that Matusow underwent the same experiences suffered by all Communists who turn against the party and reveal its secret machinations on the witness stand before a Capitol Hill group or a federal jury.
They are immediately subjected to tremendous pressure to recant under penalty of retaliation. The psychological treatment is not administered only by old friends in Communist circles: It is brought by their families, their children, their business associates, with offers of reward as well as threats of punishment. Since they are usually "emotionally unstable" in the first instance, they frequently crack up and become wholly irresponsible.
The most disturbing aspect of the Matusow retractions, in the opinion of Brownell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, is the impetus it has given to the demand that every accused person be confronted by accusers. This is the principal objective behind the current flip-flops of the Matusow-Natvig-Watson brand.

Try, Stop Me
A dignified lawyer took his wife to Europe to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Neither had been abroad before, but a more worldly junior partner volunteered to make their Paris visit a breeze.
"I know the manager of the finest hotel there," he assured them. "I'll write that you're coming." He did, too. "This gentleman has done a lot for me," is what he dictated, "so I want to be sure that you give him the best of everything: corner suite, room service, etc., etc."
The manager himself greeted the lawyer and, though he seemed surprised to meet the wife, shrugged his shoulders, and conducted the couple to their suite. Everything was lovely—including three young ladies, daintily clad, who sat in a row in the sitting room.
"Who are they?" gasped the lawyer. "Ah, monsieur," the manager assured him. "It is as your friend requested: The three etceteras!"

Mrs. Peart Hosts Wayne Township Homemakers Club

Mrs. Jesse Peart was hostess Monday in her home for an all-day meeting of the Wayne Township Home Demonstration Group. A cooperative luncheon was enjoyed at the noon hour.

A lesson on "Time and Energy Management" was conducted by the Home Agent, Mrs. Leora Sayre. It is well known that every homemaker wants time as well as energy for doing "extra" things. This lesson was designed to help in taking a critical look at how time and energy is used in doing the many household tasks and then perhaps aid in determining easier, quicker, and better ways of doing.

Plans were made for the next meeting on plastic handbag construction, March 28 in Westfall school.

Mrs. Peart will continue as councillor for the next project year and Mrs. Lewis Dean was selected to assist her as vice councillor. Mrs. Clyde Karshner was appointed to continue as the secretary-treasurer.

Those present were: Mrs. Earl Steck and sons, Carl and Curtis, Mrs. D. E. Mossbarger, Mrs. Percy May, Mrs. Russell Yable, Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, Mrs. Dick Tootle, Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Karshner and daughter, Dolores, Mrs. Sayre, and Mrs. Peart.

DEADLY INSECTS HELP EX-GI ACQUIRE COLLEGE EDUCATION

Ken Larman holds by forceps one of his 10,000 poisonous "pals" which are helping to pay for his college education.

By REX STANLEY
Central Press Correspondent

HAYDEN, Ariz.—Ten thousand of the deadliest insects in North America are helping to send a young war veteran through Arizona State college.

The insects are scorpions—two lethal species which are common to the desert country near the college. The veteran is 25-year-old Ken Larman, a mathematics major in his junior year, who is turning scorpions into money to pay for his education.

Larman's strange method of working his way through college is possible because the poison research laboratory at Arizona State needs a great many scorpions to make a life-saving serum.

First developed by lab director Dr. Herbert L. Stahnke, the serum has prevented the deaths of hundreds of persons stung by the cat-quick insects. Scorpion venom can kill children in a few minutes.

Only the two deadliest species can be used to manufacture the serum. When both the serum and scorpion stocks dwindled to nearly nothing a few weeks ago, Stahnke put out an emergency call for scorpions, and offered five cents for each one. Young Larman obtained a pair of forceps, some jars, and went hunting.

He poked into old woodpiles and under the bark of trees, explored damp cellars, and turned over trash near irrigation ditches. Three mornings of hunting produced 820 scorpions, worth $41. By Stahnke's request, each was two or more inches long.

"I HIT a jackpot by nature," Larman puts it. "Scorpions everywhere, and easy to catch when I learned how."

Fast as they are, the scuttling insects can be picked up by their curved, stinger-tipped tails—if you're careful. Larman soon found his fingers were faster and surer than the forceps. In a short time, the lab was manufacturing serum again.

To make the serum, each lethal insect is milked of its venom by electrical shock. The venom is injected into cats, probably the only animal with blood rich in natural antibodies. The cats remain unharmed, even after injections that represent 400 average scorpion stings. The serum, refined from the cats' blood, is a white crystal that needs only to be dissolved in water.

Since Larman hit his "scorpion jackpot," he has delivered 10,000 of them to the lab and received $500 toward his college education. His favorite hunting ground is around his home here in Hayden, a small south-central Arizona mining community. Collecting on weekends and holidays, he averages about $30 a week.

"SCORPIONS are harder to find in the winter, because they don't like colder weather, and they hide deeply," explains Larman.

During summer months, Ken can pick up $70 worth in a weekend. The student veteran adds to his total by spreading damp sacks on lawns. The night-roaming insects crawl under the sacks.

The Arizona State college laboratory is the only one in the United States making the serum, and its output is small. More scorpions would help, but collections are limited to those who can personally deliver the insects. Mailing of live scorpions is against postal regulations. Arizona's congressmen recently introduced a bill changing the law, if suitable containers are used.

Speaking of serum, Larman has yet to be stung by a scorpion. "It's bound to happen, one of these days," he shrugs. When it does, treatment will be handy—provided by the thousands of scorpions he has collected to pay his way through college.

Hal Boyle Says:

Let Kids Select Own Toys

NEW YORK (AP)—When you buy a toy for a child, do you insist it improve the child's mind?

If you do, Kay Stanley thinks you may be making a big mistake. One of the top woman manufacturers in this field, she feels America's booming billion-dollar-a-year toy industry has "gone culture crazy." She'd like to put the emphasis in toys back on their fun value, not their so-called educational or instructive value.

"I wish children were rich enough to buy their own toys," she said vigorously. "You'd see a big change overnight if children, instead of parents or psychologists, could pick the toys they really wanted."

"It's about time we let children's minds alone—at least while they're playing. We beat them over the head with teaching toys until the only play the poor little things really enjoy is watching television. Even then they pick up a little learning—such as how to hold a gun or rob a bank."

"We're grim about education, and we're raising grim children. Doctors tell adults they should relax, but while they are relaxing themselves they keep their kids working on spelling games, arithmetic games, vocabulary games, and put the right peg in the right opening games."

Kay, an energetic, attractive, blue-eyed blonde in her early forties, was in the hotel management field in Chicago in 1941 when she set out to be a toy tycoon. At that time the toy industry was in its doll-drums phase.

"Dolls will probably always be the mainstay of this business," she sighed. "But did you ever think that one reason little girls get so many dolls is that their great big daddies are still doll-daddy themselves?"

Kay's idea for little girls tired of playing with dolls: A rubber-mould toy with which children could cast plaster figures, then paint them with water colors.

She cooked up her first batch of crude rubber on her own kitchen stove. The first year she grossed $14,000. Now she has 200 employees, occupies five floors of a Chicago factory, sells $2 million worth of toys a year.

Her biggest money-making idea, launched in 1953, was a toy cake mix set, using real food, for children between 6 and 10. Kay has since added new sets that enable the children to make gelatin desserts, cookies, fudge or sew clothing just like their mothers, only on a smaller scale. And they use exactly the same ingredients as mother does.

"Why should a child make a mud pie if she'd really rather bake a small cake?" asked Kay. "Children want to do what their parents do, but on a scale more suitable to their own size."

"In approaching an idea for a new toy, I think first of what adults do in everyday life that a child might also want to do purely for its own fun."

"I label all my toys as educational or instructive, because, frankly, it's the only way I can sell them. The retailers say parents won't buy a toy unless it is labeled educational."

"But any educational value of a toy should be merely a by-product. Children are naturally gay and happy. To try deliberately to make them serious at their play takes something from the joy of childhood."

"... This country has always been the classic ground of revolutions, and its annals are but the narrative of a long series of popular commotions and political vicissitudes. In the period of time between the year 420, when the Franks entered Gaul, and 1644, when Louis XIV ascended the throne of France, and the Tartars established themselves in Pekin, a period of twelve hundred and twenty-four years, China underwent fifteen changes of dynasty, all accompanied by frightful civil wars."

It cannot be forecast that this will be the destiny of China during the next century. It is impossible for anyone to know what even the next ten years will bring, but this much is almost certain: The giant that lay asleep for so long is now awake and is moving fast.

It began to move with Sun Yat-sen's revolution; when Wu Pei-fu and Feng Yu-hsiang sought to build a new China on ancient models; when Chiang Kai-shek sought to build a modern nationalist China; and now when Mao Tze-tung is applying the impetus of Marxism to a revolution that has become an imperialism.

Friendliness In Stock Probe Wearing Thin

Senate Investigators
Uncover Sore Spots As
Prices Continue Drop

By SAM DAWSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some of the friendliness of the Senate's "friendly study" of the stock market appears to be wearing thin.

Members of the Senate Banking Committee disagree sharply among themselves, and witnesses question are increasingly at odds over these questions:

1. Are stock prices too high?

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says he gave up years ago trying to figure out the stock market. Presidents of the leading stock exchanges think the market is healthy. But the head of the Sears Roebuck pension fund is nervous about the recent stock price swings.

2. Is the Senate inquiry rocking the market?

William McC. Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says he doesn't know. But even while the senators were arguing the point, stock prices—whether by coincidence or not—tumbled at a rate that makes some wonder if the whole question of high prices might not soon become academic.

3. Is there too much speculation in the market?

One witness tells the committee a 1929 type of boom-bust is possible. A number of others say the 1929 and 1955 situations aren't comparable.

4. Is the public buying so many stocks on margin (that is, in part on the cuff) that it is hurting the economy?

Some say the percentage of margin trading is too small to be dangerous. Others urge that margins promptly be moved nearer the all-cash basis to protect the public from itself. And some say there's nothing like falling stock prices to make a change unnecessary. At present, the stock purchase rule is at least 60 per cent cash and not more than 40 per cent on credit.

5. Is the Federal Reserve Board, by its actions on margins and on interest rates, favoring the bankers and the stock brokers over businessmen and farmers?

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) suggests "an unfriendly critic" might so charge.

Roman, Protestant, Jewish Churches Seek To Aid Poor

NEW YORK (AP)—American churches and synagogues this week are putting into practice an old proverb—that charity begins at home, but it shouldn't stay there.

The idea, as it's being enacted, is to help the lowly wherever they are.

Simultaneously throughout the Protestant and Jewish places of worship are conducting their annual drives for funds to aid the meek, the sick, the hungry and poor of the world. They hope to raise more than 100 million dollars.

Through such services, said President Eisenhower, Americans show their compassion for all peoples everywhere.

"In these days," he said, "evidence of America's friendship for our overseas neighbors is vital for the preservation of world peace and for the increase of understanding among nations as well as individuals."

Special collections will be taken up in most of the country's churches and temples as part of these three appeals:

"The Bishops' Welfare and Emergency Relief Fund," sponsored by the Roman Catholic Bishops of the United States through the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

"The United Appeal," sponsored for major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Churches by Church World Service of the National Council of Churches.

"The United Jewish Appeal for Overseas Relief," sponsored by the Synagogue Council of America.

Both the Catholic and Protestant-orthodox drives culminate in special offerings in churches next Sunday.

High point of the Jewish drive is the "Passover Appeal" during the traditional Passover celebration April 7 to 14.

Under the programs, a wide variety of relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction services are provided in farflung areas suffering from disease, lack of food, insufficient housing or population upheavals.

The work includes medical aid, clothing and food distribution, hospitals, resettlement and housing projects.

Illness Rule Given

WASHINGTON (AP)—Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews has ruled that a pregnant woman is not necessarily sick under terms of the new income tax law. Therefore, he said, she may not exclude from her taxable income salary received during a leave of absence for pregnancy—unless she is sick as well as pregnant.

Friendliness In Stock Probe Wearing Thin

Senate Investigators
Uncover Sore Spots As
Prices Continue Drop

By SAM DAWSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some of the friendliness of the Senate's "friendly study" of the stock market appears to be wearing thin.

Members of the Senate Banking Committee disagree sharply among themselves, and witnesses they question are increasingly at odds over these questions:

1. Are stock prices too high?

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says he gave up years ago trying to figure out the stock market. Presidents of the leading stock exchanges think the market is healthy. But the head of the Sears Roebuck pension fund is nervous about the recent stock price swings.

2. Is the Senate inquiry rocking the market?

William McC. Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, says he doesn't know. But even while the senators were arguing the point, stock prices—whether by coincidence or not—tumbled at a rate that makes some wonder if the whole question of high prices might not soon become academic.

3. Is there too much speculation in the market?

One witness tells the committee a 1929 type of boom-bust is possible. A number of others say the 1929 and 1955 situations aren't comparable.

4. Is the public buying so many stocks on margin (that is, in part on the cuff) that it is hurting the economy?

Some say the percentage of margin trading is too small to be dangerous. Others urge that margins promptly be moved nearer the all-cash basis to protect the public from itself. And some say there's nothing like falling stock prices to make a change unnecessary. At present, the stock purchase rule is at least 60 per cent cash and not more than 40 per cent on credit.

5. Is the Federal Reserve Board, by its actions on margins and on interest rates, favoring the bankers and the stock brokers over businessmen and farmers?

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill.) suggests "an unfriendly critic" might so charge.

EASY REDUCING

Science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods
you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why...

counteracts hunger
Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full, contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast
You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my late husband Willard H. Barch who passed away 3 yrs. ago, Feb. 16, 1952.

You went first and I remain.
One thing I'd have you do,
Walk slowly down that long, long path,
For soon I'll follow you.
I'll want to know each step you take,
That I may walk the same.
For some day down that long, long road,
You'll hear me call your name.
Sadly missed by Caroline Barch.

Local Keglers End Up Second At Lancaster

Butch's Jewelers, of Circleville, came up with second place team money in a Lancaster bowling tournament.

The local keggers, as a matter of fact, were only 20 pins off the leading five-man pace with a 3,109 pin total. Anchor man Pete Noble rolled a 250 to lead the locals.

Butch's were tops in one department—1,000 for scratch in one game.

However, Noble's mark was only three below that of Earl Wilson, bowling for Elsie's Mobile Homes, who had a 253 the previous week. Wilson's three game mark of 607 was just topped by a 637.

IN ALL, six Circleville teams placed in the money. In order, they are: Butch's 3,109; Johnny Evans, 3,014; Ankrom Lumber, 2,973; Mecca Restaurant, 2,949; Top Hat Cafe, 2,945; and Elsie's, 2,925.

Butch's team effort resulted when all five members rolled 500 series. R. Shaw had 592, P. Gordon, 565, E. Bahr, 505, L. Sims, 508 and Noble, 594.

Two-man team events and singles matches close out the tourney this weekend at Lancaster.

Avila Fussing With Cleveland

PHOENIX, Ariz. (P) — Bobby Avila declared "I'm a ball player, not a gambler" and got on an airplane to go home to Mexico yesterday after refusing a Cleveland Indians contract reportedly calling for $25,500.

The peppery second baseman,

Gola Said Key To LaSalle's Tourney Hopes

KANSAS CITY (P) — LaSalle's hopes of becoming the third team to win two successive national collegiate basketball championships might well depend on how long they can carry the tune of "Goals by Gola."

Tom Gola, the Explorers' 6-foot-7-inch All-America, will carry a 24.5 scoring average for 34 games into the semifinals of the 17th NCAA tournament against the Iowa Hawkeyes here Friday night. He has scored 711 points.

Following the LaSalle-Iowa game in Municipal Auditorium will be the University of San Francisco-Dons, giants of the Far West, and the up-and-coming Colorado Buffaloes of the Rocky Mountain area.

Gola's scoring average is by far the best of any of the players who will play in the pay-off round of collegiate basketball's most cherished prize.

Iowa, the Big Ten champion making its first bid for a national basketball crown, has no one to compare with Gola on the scoring basis, but the Hawkeyes will offer good team strength.

Another All-America, 6-foot-10-inch Bill Russell, is San Francisco's leading scorer. He's averaged 21.2 points while also winning recognition as one of the game's greatest defensive players.

who wants $32,000, made the remark after General Manager Hank Greenberg offered him a "bonus if we win the pennant again."

"First contract I get this year, they offer me a $2,500 raise," Avila said. "If I'm not worth more than that after winning the batting title, will you let me go? Do I have to hit .500 to make more money?"

International Hockey League Playoffs Due

TROY (P) — Four International Hockey League teams begin their battles tonight for the Joe Turner memorial trophy, emblematic of the league's playoff championship.

Regular league play ended Sunday with Cincinnati in first place, Troy in second, Toledo in third and Grand Rapids in fourth.

Cincinnati tussles with Toledo and Troy tangles with Grand Rapids in a pair of three-out-of-five series. The games alternate between cities with Cincinnati and Troy hosting the first contests.

The Troy Bruins and Grand Rapids Rockets plan to get their series out of the way quickly, with the fifth game scheduled for Sunday. But the Cincinnati Mohawks and Toledo Mercurys may dawdle along until a week from tomorrow. Team officials said faster scheduling could not be arranged because of commitments on the home ice.

After the winners are determined in the semifinal series, a final set of four-out-of-seven will be arranged.

The Mercurys go into the Cincinnati series with five straight victories. More important, the Toledo sextet has topped the Mohawks in four of their last five outings.

Troy is not expected to have too much trouble in disposing of Grand Rapids' ambitions. Fifth-place Johnstown and last place Port Wayne will not compete in the playoffs.

Big Klu's Bat Still A-Booming

FORT MYERS, Fla. (P) — Ted Kluszewski's bat is still booming. Up to today, the Cincinnati Redleg first baseman has rifled two homers, a triple and four singles in 16 plate appearances for a .438 average.

Big Klu singled yesterday when he appeared as a pinchhitter in an exhibition game at Sarasota against the Boston Red Sox. The Reds won, 1-0, on excellent pitching by Corky Valentine, Gerry Staley and Jerry Lane.

Marion Signs Akron Coach To Contract

MARION (P) — Gordon K. Larson is slated to be the new head football coach at Marion Harding High School, succeeding William A. (Pete) Howard, who resigned last November.

The Marion school board yesterday named Larson, head football coach at Akron South High School, to the post.

Big Ten OKs NCAA Grid Plan

CHICAGO (P) — Membership approval of the NCAA football television program for 1955 got off to a quick start yesterday with an okay from the powerful Big Ten.

A few hours after the plan had been announced, the Big Ten stamped its approval at a meeting of athletic directors and faculty representatives.

The new plan offers 13 football dates—eight to be televised nationally and five regionally.

The Big Ten and the Pacific Coast conferences were in favor of regional television and were vigorously opposed to a "Game-of-the-Week" plan last year.

Auto Fatality Nets Prison Term

LANCASTER (P) — Common Pleas Judge Harry Kilburger yesterday sentenced Jack W. Spencer, 23-year-old glassworker, to one-to-20 years in Mansfield Reformatory on a manslaughter conviction in a traffic death.

He was convicted last week in the death of Mrs. Betty Ann West, 28, Columbus. She was riding in a car which collided with Spencer's auto at an intersection here last Oct. 31.

Outside Bakeries Serve Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (P) — Bread continued to be shipped into Cincinnati today as a strike at 10 wholesale bakeries entered its 24th day. The AFL Teamsters Union is seeking a five-day work week to replace the present six-day schedule.

Companies say the proposal is economically impossible for them. Large chain stores with their own bakeries are not affected by the strike.

Judge Confused By Driver Report

MIDDLETOWN (P) — Judge J. T. Lamb still is trying to figure this one out.

As he closed traffic court, a woman spectator came up to him and complimented him on his handling of "traffic violation cases."

"That husband of mine was the most reckless man with a car until you had him up for drunken driving and took his license away for life," she said. "Now he's the most careful driver you ever saw."

Keep America Beautiful, anti-litter organization, reports that after each major holiday such as Fourth of July, Labor Day and Decoration Day, it costs the nation about $5,000,000 to tidy up the mess left by litterbugs.

Brown Admitting Graham Is Gone

CLEVELAND (P) — Coach Paul Brown finally admitted today that he does not expect to have Otto Graham back next season to pass for the Cleveland Browns.

Brown, returning from a vacation, said "it seems that he is serious about retiring and we're making plans to go without him."

Graham announced he was quitting after the Browns won the National League championship, but previously the coach appeared not to believe it. He said he "hoped" Graham would change his mind.

Marietta Star Tops Loop List

AKRON (P) — Mark Davis, Marietta's all-Ohio star, led the Ohio Conference basketball teams in scoring with 624 in 24 games, the loop's statistician reports.

Lou Mitchell of Denison was second with 546 in 21 contests to tie Davis for high average with exactly 26 per game.

Marietta won the conference title for the second straight year with an 11-0 record, and Wooster was second again with 11-2. Tom Gustin of Wooster led in rebounds with 18.1 per game. Mitchell of Denison finishing second with 17.7.

Transport Pickaway, Named For County, Earns High Record

Vessel Proves Mainstay For Pacific Navy

She Aided Invasion At Inchon, Carried Thousands To U. S.

As far as the USS Pickaway is concerned, World War II never ended.

The hard-working attack transport, named in honor of Pickaway County and now believed on duty in the Far East, happened to be crossing the International Date Line on V-E Day and again on V-J Day. Technically, for the ship's crew and passengers at that time, neither of the big war-ending celebration days ever arrived.

But the big ship APA 222 painted on her bow has far higher claims to recognition in Uncle Sam's naval forces. Almost since the time she was built in the closing days of World War II, she has set a long list of records in the type of hard work that only the soldiers, sailors and Marines can fully appreciate.

She was kept so busy carrying men and vital supplies to and from Pacific bases that nearly six years elapsed before the Pickaway was able to share directly in a real amphibious invasion.

THE VESSEL, which originally was planned as a Liberty cargo ship, was one of the first to swing into action when the Korean conflict broke out. About one month after the North Korean forces marched against South Korea, the Pickaway had started to shuttle U. S. Army troops from Japan to Pusan to stem the tide of battle.

On that day she was at Inchon, Korea, when U. S. Marines climbed ladders over the break-walls to flank the North Koreans.

Commissioned under Commander H. L. Bixby, USN, on Dec. 12, 1944, the Pickaway underwent extensive shipboard drills and amphibious exercises at Coronado Beach, Cal., before she picked up approximately 1,500 Army troops at Seattle, Wash., for her first wartime voyage. The troops were disembarked at Pearl Harbor on Feb. 16, 1945, and the Pickaway continued on to Iwo Jima.

From that battle-littered island she helped evacuate the victorious Marines who were mopping up remnants of the Japanese

Dulles Strongly Urging OK Of Extension Of Tariff Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles has described the reciprocal trade agreement act as a symbol of United States willingness to show "a decent regard" for nations whose destinies are "interlocked with our own." He said it was of "utmost importance" that Congress extend it.

Dulles was a witness before the Senate Finance Committee which is considering a bill, already passed by the House, to continue the trade act for three years and give the President additional tariff-cutting powers. The present law expires in June.

Under the extension measure, President Eisenhower would have authority to make agreements with other nations for a mutual lowering of import duties. He could cut them by as much as 15 per cent during a three-year period.

The general theme of Dulles' argument was that the trade act is one of the forces binding the free forces. The Pickaway took off the 24th Marine Regiment and moved that force back to Hawaii. Intensive preparations were then begun for the expected all-out invasion of Japan, but the Pickaway still found time to transport personnel from Guam back to the States late in May and early June of 1945.

There were other hurried voyages too—to New Caledonia, Russell Island and Guadalcanal, to name only a few—before the Pickaway again prepared for another transpacific haul. And preparations for this voyage were under way when word was received that the Japs had asked for an end to hostilities.

During the remainder of 1945, she shuttled back and forth across the Pacific, picking up personnel at the hundreds of bases amid the islands of the western Pacific and returning them for separation from the service in the United States.

THE PICKAWAY, a tried and tested veteran when it came to delivering the goods and men as needed, also played a star role on many a "Sentimental Journey". And for that, perhaps, she will be remembered best of all—by the thousands she carried home and the many other thousands who waited for her masts to come over the homeward horizon.

Meanwhile, in the touchy waters around Formosa or Korea, or somewhere else west of 'Frisco, she goes on today in her customary quiet way with a job to be done.

2 Perry Countians Killed In Mishap

LANCASTER (AP)—The state highway patrol said John D. Spencer, 37, of New Lexington, and Mrs. Margaret Sue Lanning, 31, of New Straitsville, were killed last night when a car in which they were riding struck a pole on Ohio 312, five miles south of Bremen.

Each of the victims was said to be the parent of five children.

Woman Judge Dies

POMEROY (AP)—Mrs. Cora Roberts, first woman probate court judge in Ohio who served in that post in Meigs County during the late 20s, died here yesterday.

And trade policies "are far more 'aid' policies in bringing economic well being," he asserted.

Proposal Sent State Legislature Asks Judges' Pay Be Increased

(Second in a Series)

A proposal presented to the Ohio Legislature concerning the compensation of judges in the state has certain definite merits, according to Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

"At the present time," the judge pointed out, "a judge cannot even have his low salary raised once his term gets under way. This is quite unfair."

Statistics show that Ohio judges' salaries rank far below other states. A chief justice of the Supreme Court in this state can only earn up to $16,500 a year. In New Jersey, with nearly 40 per cent fewer people but approximately the same per capita income, he can earn up to $25,000 yearly.

Other Supreme Court judges in Ohio have a ceiling of $16,000 a year. In New Jersey, the top is $24,000 yearly.

INTERMEDIATE judges in Ohio can gain a top salary of $13,500. In New Jersey, comparable judges have a high salary of up to $20,000. Major trial judges in New Jersey may earn from $7,500 to $20,000. In Ohio, these same judges have salaries from $5,300 to $13,000.

Yet, New Jersey has already passed bills raising their limits by $2,500 a year. These only await signature.

The new Ohio bill would make the following adjustments:

Chief Justice, from $16,500 to $20,000; other Supreme Court justices, from $16,000 to $19,000; judges of Courts of Appeals, from $13,500 to $17,500; judges of Common Pleas and Probate Courts, from $4,000 to $7,000 (paid by the state), which results in an increase from $8,300 to $16,000.

THE PROPOSAL also provides an expense allowance for the Chief Justice of $4,000 and his colleagues $3,000 yearly.

Actually, this proposal is part of a four-point program. The other sections include: a retirement act (which was discussed in the previous article); elimination of the law against salary increases during term of office; and provision for an administrative assistant to the Supreme Court.

UHRICHVILLE (AP)—The Midvale plant of Robinson Clay Products Co. and Superior Clay Co. No. 2 plant were closed today by striking AFL truckers.

Trainmen Delay Strike In Lorain

LORAIN (AP)—A strike of trainmen that would have shut down the big National Tube Co. works was delayed late yesterday, shortly before its scheduled start.

The walkout of 300 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen was postponed by arrival of a federal mediator who is attempting to settle their dispute with the Lake Terminal Railroad. The trainmen are protesting handling of their grievances. National Tube, which employs 10,500, depends upon Lake Terminal for all intraplant transportation.
